BETHEL (Berks Co.) — "We try to keep it simple. Our main priority is making a living and raising these guys. I like being here when they get off the school bus," said Larry Grumbine, dairy farm operator.

Grumbine, along with his wife, Denise, and children Brandon, 10, James, 6, and Natalie, 1, winners of this year's Outstanding Farm Family designation from the Reading Fair Board, will be recognized at an upcoming banquet.

Although she did not grow up on a farm, "I wouldn't trade it," said Denise. "I would have a hard time moving back. It makes me feel good that we're putting in the hard work and selling it to consumers. It makes me proud that we did it ourselves," she said.

The family will be honored at Reading Fair's annual Outstanding Farm Family Awards Night Banquet Wednesday, July 23 at 7 p.m. at Virginville Grange Hall.

In addition, two outstanding 4-H'ers and two FFA members will be honored during the evening.

The Outstanding Farm Family Award is given based on a point system. The family's level of Grange involvement, farm management, community, school involvement, and hobbies, sports, and recreation contribute to the points they receive for the award.

A Holstein Herd

The dairy consists of 60 cows and 45 calves and heifers.

The Grumbines raise the heifer calves until they are six months old, then send them off to be raised until they are ready to freshen. They provide the feed for the animals, then pay for labor, said Larry.

The DHIA rolling herd average is about 24,000 pounds of milk, 851 pounds of butterfat, and 745 pounds of protein.

The couple has worked on the farm since 1991, when Larry's fa-

Dairy Farmers To Boost Cull Cow Value By Assuring Beef Quality

LOYSVILLE (Perry Co.) — More than half the beef from dairy cull cows goes for whole meat cuts — not just hamburger — according to organizers of a new dairy beef quality program in Pennsylvania.

That means dairy farmers need to be paying a lot of attention to the quality of the beef they're putting on the market.

By collectively using good medical injection techniques in particular, dairy farmers may come to gain about $70 more profit on each cull cow, according to Paul Slayton, director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC).

"What we're really working on is to add value to your cull cows," Slayton said at the first-ever Dairy Beef Quality Assurance (DBQA) meeting, on the dairy farm of Duane and June Hertzler near Loysville, Perry County.

The pilot program is a cooperative effort between the PBC, the National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF), and Penn State. Leaders on hand for the meeting included Slayton; John Adams, NMPF director of animal health and farm services; Larry Hutchison, Kim Nelen, and others from Penn State's Department of Veterinary Science; and Dave Swartz, Perry County extension

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
July 16, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to cook whole birds was light and unaggressive. Seller offerings were adequate to ample and were more readily available on the lighter weight sizes. Live supplies were moderate; weights were desirable to light. Processing schedules were moderate. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 59 to 68 cents. Trade sentiment remained no better than steady. In the parts complex, drums continued to clear well, closely followed by legs and leg quarters. Other items were at least adequate for a somewhat lackluster activity and premiums were often reduced to stimulate buyer interest.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
July 16, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

SPOT PRICES OF CLASS II CREAM, dollars per lb butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.5867-1.7851. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.5750-1.8084 mostly 1.6567-1.7617.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8500-.9300. Class III, spot prices: 1.000-1.0500.

SPOTS SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week: In 0, Out 51; Last Week In 0, Out 60; Last Week In 0, Out 2. SOUTHEAST STATES: This Week: In 0, Out 0; Last Week In 0, Out 0; Last Week In 0, Out 0.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, June 2003 uniform prices: Northeast $11.66, Mideast $10.63, Southeast $11.98, Florida $13.02, and Western New York (a state order) $11.21 at the base city or county in the orders. (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.)

Milk production continues to show declines in most sections of the region. The most noticeable changes are occurring in the Southeast where temperatures and humidity have been high. The weather in the Northeast is more seasonable and production isn't moving too much. However, contacts report that milk is very tight in this part of the East. Fat and protein tests remain relatively low. Bottled milk sales are mixed. Sales in much of the Southeast are holding up surprisingly well. However, bottled milk orders in the Northeast range from sluggish to fair depending on locale. Surplus milk supplies are tighter. Most plant contacts report little manufacturing in the Southeast and only moderate schedules further north.

The condensed skim market is firm. Class II prices are steady, but producers and buyers are anxiously waiting Friday's (7/18) announcement of August's Class II skim milk price (the basis for most Class II condensed skim sales). Prices for Class III wet solids jumped sharply this week. The gains reflect the projected Class III skim milk prices for July. Demand is about steady, but Class III users are looking at NDM as a less costly alternative.

The fluid cream market remains firm. Offerings are tight and Western cream continues to be "imported" to supplement local supplies. Cream is being pulled from Midwestern and Southeastern states with more regularity. Spot prices are often higher as multiples and the CME butter average are higher this week. Demand for cream is holding up surprisingly well, but some spot buyers are resisting the high-priced loads. Ice cream and ice cream mix producers are running at near capacity levels as demand is in normal "summer mode." Cream cheese makers are operating at near normal levels, but most are showing some signs of price resistance when making spot purchases. Bottled cream orders have eased in some areas and producers have eased back on operating schedules. Churning is light to moderate.

Cimarron SR ALFALFA

Top Forage Quality

Cimarron SR produces larger leaves than other alfalfa varieties (See photo right) And it holds its leaves better in the field and in the baling process The result is a leafier hay with higher protein and TDN Break open a bale of Cimarron hay, and you can see the difference

High Yields - Long Stand Life

Cimarron SR is producing excellent yields in the Penn State trials And unlike other alfalfa varieties Cimarron SR was bred on the East Coast, so it stands up well under the difficulties of Eastern conditions You can count on Cimarron SR for long stand life and top productivity.

Sclerotinia Resistance

Sclerotinia crown rot is a significant problem for alfalfa growers on the East Coast Cimarron SR provides the protection against sclerotinia that growers need.

Weevil Tolerance

Cimarron SR's unique alfalfa weevil tolerance reduces weevil damage by 50% In a heavy infestation spraying can be cut in half. In lighter infestations, spraying can be avoided altogether.

Beef Checkoff In Jeopardy

Guest Editorial
By Paul Slayton
Executive Director
Pennsylvania Beef Council

On July 8, in a case that could have far-reaching implications for both the U.S. and Pennsylvania beef industry, a three-judge panel of the Eight Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a ruling that the Beef Promotion and Research Act violates the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

The verdict was not completely unexpected. The industry knew that ultimately a decision on this case would likely be made by the U.S. Supreme Court. This news was disappointing for me, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, and our 21-member board of directors — elected beef, dairy, and veal producers who guide the state's checkoff program. Disappointing because we know the many success stories credited to the beef checkoff program.

The beef checkoff program has been very popular by a majority of producers for about 15 years. While the referendum was supported by 79 percent of cattlemen in 1988, surveys, as recent as January 2003, indicate that support is repeatedly in the 65-70 percent range. Beef, dairy, and veal producers, small and large, have continued to think that this is the best self-help program available to them. It has provided them with their own research departments, a channel to promote their product, and a way to reach consumers with the beef nutrition message through education and marketing.

Recent research conducted by Dr. Ward, Florida State University, indicated that for every $1 invested in these programs, producers have seen a $5.67 return on investment. Since initiation of the beef checkoff program in 1988, it has contributed $6.46 billion of income to producers nationally.

It's no secret that chicken has made steady strides on beef demand during the last 20 years. Our primary competitor, in the meat case and on the menu, used a plethora of quick and easy products, developed by branded manufacturers, and the touted health benefits of the boneless, skinless chicken breast to make a dent in beef market share. Thanks to the beef checkoff, though, the story line has changed.

During the last four years, beef demand is up 10 percent. Led by checkoff-funded new product innovations, a great beef meal is five minutes from the dinner table, competing head-on with convenient chicken entrees.

In addition, the industry recently unveiled a series of national print advertisements challenging consumers to think outside the boneless, skinless chicken breast. Twelve beef cuts meet USDA requirements for lean or extra lean, falling between a chicken breast and a chicken thigh as measured by grams of fat. And as our staff has been telling

To Keep Your Cows Cool

Summer heat can really take a toll on your herd's milk production. The highest-producing cows are the ones most vulnerable to the damaging effects of heat stress, warns Dennis Buffington, professor of agricultural and biological engineering at Penn State. Milk production decreases as heat stress increases. He points out that even greater economic loss results from the reduction in cows' conception rates as heat stress rises.

"First and foremost, the cows need to be protected from direct solar radiation," he said. "The shading system must be designed so that the animals have full access to quality feed and water while in the shade. Sufficient floor space needs to be provided under the shade structure so that the animals do not crowd together to stay in the shade.

"The underside of the roof needs to include insulation material to reduce the thermal radiation load on the cows. Finally the shade structure needs to be high enough and include a ridge opening so that natural ventilation will be enhanced."

Evaporative cooling systems to reduce heat stress levels on cows are common in the southern U.S., but few are used by Pennsylvania dairy farmers, according to Buffington. He anticipates that evaporative cooling systems will become more popular in Pennsylvania as production levels of cows increase and as producers search for effective ways to reduce heat stress. The evaporation of just one gallon of water per hour at 85 degrees Fahrenheit provides nearly the same cooling effect as a ¾ ton air conditioner unit.

"This amount of cooling can handle the heat produced by, on average, two lactating cows," he said. "The actual amount of water that can be evaporated depends on the humidity level of the air."

Different approaches to providing evaporative cooling for dairy cows have been used over the past several decades. Buffington believes the use of a sprinkler or misting system in conjunction with forced ventilation is most effective.

"It is not sufficient simply to cool the air with evaporative cooling and hope to significantly reduce the damaging heat stress effects on the cows," he said.

"It is essential to wet the cows and to provide forced ventilation to speed up the rate of evaporation," he said. "The direct wetting of the cows cools them only a limited amount — it is the rapid evaporation of the water that really does the cooling. The need for rapid evaporation is why it is essential to use fans in conjunction with sprinklers or misters. Natural ventilation is not sufficient, at least in the climates of the Northeast, to provide the quick evaporation."

During heat stress conditions, cows must be wetted intermittently so that the water can evaporate from the surface of the cows. Effective evaporative cooling systems generally provide a spray of water for about a minute every three or four minutes with the fans running continuously. An evaporative cooling system should be developed with enough flexibility so that the wetting durations and intervals can be easily modified in the field.

The water spray should be directed onto the back and sides of each cow, Buffington explained. "Ideally, all the water should evaporate on the back and sides of a cow so that none of the sprinkler water comes down to the udder because of the danger of contaminating the teat openings with bacteria from the hide," he said. "It also is important to keep the floor surfaces and bedding materials dry."

Buffington contends that investments in effective systems to relieve heat stress for dairy cows will pay dividends in increased cow comfort, milk production, and conception efficiency. "As the production levels of dairy cows increase, they become more vulnerable to heat stress," he said. "Therefore, it behooves dairy farmers to utilize evaporative cooling systems to reduce the effects of heat stress on their animals."

To Scout Your Alfalfa For Potato Leafhopper

Growers should strive to carefully manage alfalfa to reduce injury from potato leafhopper. Scouting for potato leafhopper is an easy and reliable way to prevent serious injury. To protect your alfalfa crop from damage, you need to monitor the situation in your fields.

Waiting until yellowing or "hopper burn" is evident is too late. Damage will have already occurred. In a square-shaped field, monitor in a "U"-shaped pattern. In a rectangular field, an "I"-shaped pattern is the best. In each field, select five sample sites along the "U" or "I" shape.

Use an insect net with a 15-inch diameter hoop and a tightly knit bag such as muslin. Within each of the five sample sites make 20 sweeps with the net while walking in a zig-zag pattern. Don't stop swinging the net until each of the 20 sweeps is completed. Sweep the net about 3-4 inches below the tops of the plants.

A number of factors need to be considered when determining if spraying to control the leafhopper population is justified. A publication entitled "A Pest Management Program for Alfalfa In Pennsylvania" is available from your county extension office. Consult the charts in this publication for assistance in determining the economic threshold for your alfalfa crop.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHEN WE UNDERSTAND

Background Scripture:
Nehemiah 8.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 119:33-40.

"So the wall was finished" (6:15). Through perseverance and the leadership of Nehemiah, the great task thought impossible by their neighbors was completed.

Their neighbors did not share their joy, "for they perceived that this work had been accomplished with the help of our God" (16b). So this good work achieved also the grudging respect of their enemies for the greatness of the Jewish God.

Actually, this moment of victory was also one of great risk, for now that the good work was completed, what would hold the Jews together? Would they retain their commitment to the Lord, or would they rest secure behind their walls? There is always the danger of dissolution once the project has been completed.

The key is to make the end of the project the beginning of an even higher commitment to God. In a sense, the good work helps us to see that we need each other to accomplish the challenges to which God submits us. The good work is not the end of our commitment to God, but simply a jumping-off place to a higher level.

Return To The Law

For the Jews, the end of building the walls of Jerusalem became the beginning of their return to the law which was their spiritual and national heritage. Presumably, they had forgotten or neglected the law during the exilic and postexilic periods. But now, recognizing that it was God who enabled them to do what no one thought they could, they called upon Ezra to publicly read the law so they could hear it read for themselves.

From that day forward, the law would again become a central focus of Judaism. But the people wanted to live by the law of God so that they might do his will. They wanted top express it in their daily lives. When Jesus came preaching and teaching, he challenged people to do the same thing, proclaiming the coming of the kingdom of God, the rule of God on earth through the commitment and lives of his children.

"And they read from the book . . . clearly; and they gave the sense, so that the people understood the reading" (8:8). The law was written in Hebrew — but Hebrew, like the law, had long been forgotten by most of the Jews who now spoke Aramaic (not Arabic!). Fortunately. some still understood Hebrew and they translated the law into the common tongue so all could understand it. Although today we read from English translations of the Bible, we, too, often need someone to explain to us what various passages may mean. Some passages are easy to understand — others can be quite difficult.

All The People Wept

When the people understood what was being read, they had a significant reaction: "For all the people wept when they heard the words of the law" (8:9). Why weep? Because, once they understood of what God required of them, they were struck with a sense of judgment and guilt in his eyes. The law led them to see how far short of God's will they were living. Thus, they repented, just as Jesus called people to repent when he preached to them the good news of God.

Most, if not all of us, live fairly respectable lives. Being "respectable" can pale when we read the beatitudes or the Sermon on the Mount and, in a rare moment of understanding, see the radically different life to which Christ calls us. We too are struck with the realization of how tragically far short we fall. The gap between what the gospel demands of us and what we deliver is much greater than the Grand Canyon.

Although repentance is a natural response to a deeper understanding of God's will for us, we need to make a transition from guilt to glory. When Ezra observed the tears of the people, they said to them: "Go your way, eat the fat and drink sweet wine and send portions to him for whom nothing us prepared; for this day is holy to our Lord; and do not be grieved, for the joy of the Lord is your strength" (8:10). Our guilt is to be overcome with joy in God's grace and in sharing our plenitude with those "for whom nothing is prepared." — your neighbor in need.

PIT POWER

Farmers and composters - Here is a breakdown for compost and manure pits and manure piles! Pit Power is bacteria and bacteria feeders that break down solids in manure pits and septic tanks and breakdown compost faster.

Clean out your pit with ease, use Pit Power! One gallon of Pit Power per 10,000 to 20,000 gal. of pit volume. Should be repeated approx. 2 times a year! If aeration of the pit is possible, it will help the bacteria to grow and work faster to break down solids. Pit Power's purpose is to add life (bacteria) in the manure, which then is returned to the soil where a bacteria is working. The smell of pit manure is not so strong. Pit Power is a non-toxic product - Life to Feed Life!

Price is $58.00 per gallon
(6 gal or more - $55 per gallon). Full UPS fee will be charged if payment is not with order Send orders to

Your power is OFF... and your generator DIDN'T start.
Now your 40,000 Birds or 2,000 Pigs are DEAD.

Top 5 reasons why your generator may overheat and fail this summer...

- Low Coolant level – engine will not cool properly if coolant is below the core.
- Dirty radiator fins – must be free of dirt, dust, feathers, paper, or debris.
- Sufficient air intake – motorized shutters are strongly recommended.
- Improper coolant mix – 50/50 antifreeze and water will ensure max cooling from coolant.
- Faulty exhaust shutters – must open freely with no flow obstructions.

Here are the 5 things we'll do to help you prevent this disaster...

- We'll perform our "Generator Readiness Evaluation" worth $175 for FREE.*
- We'll detect your potential problems quickly with our trained technician team.
- We'll dispatch our technician with a service van stocked with the most popular service parts.
- We'll recommend a "Preventative Maintenance Program" that best suits your needs.
- We'll respond to emergencies you have 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

July 14, 2003
MILK FUTURES CONTINUE TO CLIMB

• September Class III futures at $13.59.

• Dairy processing slows.

The market continues to show price enhancement. Block cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange averaged $1.5120 per pound for the week ending July 11, 2003. Barrel cheese averaged $1.4760 per pound, and Grade AA butter was $1.1667 per pound.

These higher prices are also reflected in the dairy futures markets. The Class III futures at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange are now above $13 per CWT for the months August through October. The July Class III futures price is at $11.85 per CWT, about $2.10 above last month's price. Dairy producers interested in protecting future revenue may want to think about locking in a portion of their milk production for the months of August through December.

The market is reacting to a reduced milk supply. In addition, component levels typically drop this time of year and somatic cell counts rise. That makes for a tighter market for dairy inputs. The Dairy Products report issued by USDA earlier this month indicated that butter production in May 2003 was down 8.7 percent from a very high level last year, and total cheese production was down 1.1 percent. American-type cheese production in May was down 3.3 percent.

The dairy markets will closely scrutinize Thursday's milk production report. It may confirm market expectations that the milk supply is tightening, particularly out West. But then again, it may also indicate that cow numbers have not declined as much as expected. Stay tuned.

Sixteen new dairy farms have been chosen as Dairies of Distinction in Pennsylvania this year. Be sure to check out these picturesque and well-managed farmsteads in Lancaster Farming's Dairy of Distinction issue July 26. Each farm will be shown in full color with a write-up describing the family and dairy operation.

Berks County Outstanding Farm Family

ther purchased the farm. In 1993 the Grumbines purchased the operation from his father, which gave them 130 acres (90 tillable). They also rent 45 tillable additional acres.

Corn and alfalfa are the mainstay of the farm's crops. However they also grow barley and soybeans.

Son Brandon is already helping on the farm with chores such as unloading and stacking straw or helping feed the calves and heifers.

The family is busy off of the farm, also. Denise works one day a week at a local newspaper doing display advertising, besides feeding the cows and calves or making runs for machine parts or cattle medicine. She also run the silos for feeding.

The couple met through a friend that began taking Denise to Grange activities. They are both members of Marion Grange +N1853. Larry is a 25-year member. Denise helps out with the junior grange, which their sons are members of.

Denise, from the West Wyomissing area, has adjusted happily to life on the farm. "I married into it," she said. "I had to learn everything, and I'm still learning. It took me a while to get used to getting messy, but now it doesn't bother me anymore." She also helps with the milking as necessary.

Larry, on the other hand, grew up on a dairy farm. After his father sold the herd and began renting out the farm, he later began working on a dairy farm. After five years of experience on this farm, he and his brother, Craig, formed a partnership on the home farm in nearby Rehrsburg.

After five years of that partnership, Larry went out on his own in 1989 by renting a farm, then by purchasing the current farm in the summer of 1991.

As he and Denise planned a fall wedding, they also worked on the house — painting and putting in heat, new windows, and paneling — besides building a new section of the barn.

Small, Profitable

Rather than expansion, Larry is looking more toward making the farm more streamlined and keeping it a family operation.

"We're satisfied being small but we also want to be profitable," he said.

(Turn to Page A27)

"Ruby" is the universal name that James affixes to the farm's red Holsteins.

Brandon plans to exhibit "Cupcake" at the upcoming Reading Fair.

STEVENS (Lancaster Co.) — Here at Foxchase Golf Course, a pig brought them back.

In this case, the sale of pig during a golf tournament to benefit FFA may have contributed in a big way to saving an FFA chapter.

During the 11th annual Hatfield Quality Meats Fore FFA golf tournament Monday evening, the hog sold for $400 to Bill Campbell,

Auction Raises More Than $10,000

owner of Hoss's Steak and Seafood House.

After golfing, the auction raised $10,600 for the state FFA program over two courses, Foxchase in Stevens and Hawk Valley nearby. Part 2 of the fundraising golf tournament, sponsored by Hoss's, is set Monday, Aug. 4 at the Scotch Valley Country Club in Duncansville.

On Monday, the Hatfield-sponsored event attracted 239 golfers from agencies and agri-industry and about 250 to the banquet.

As for the hog that didn't get away: About four years ago, the Penns Manor High School FFA program, Clymer, was in danger of closing up, simply out of a lack of participation. But a new adviser — and the chance to build a livestock barn for FFA members — brought with it a new attitude and a brand-new FFA.

According to Gerald Hughes, chapter adviser, financial support from businesses, student fundraisers, and families helped start the process to build a 20-foot by 50-foot long barn behind the school. The barn will house lambs and hogs and eventually cattle, Hughes noted.

Local companies are donating supplies. The cost is about $4,000 to finish, Hughes said. Eventually, the barn could be named the "Comet" barn, after the school mascot.

Already the school is installing a second greenhouse and the chapter will house chickens raised for a barbecue.

The program restarted with 30 students four years ago. Since then, the program has rapidly expanded. About 150 FFA members were signed up in the program the past school year and more than that are scheduled in the upcoming year.

The building, Hughes noted, will house FFA project animals. Those animals can be shown at the various regional fairs, including Indiana County Fair, Cook Port Fair, and state Farm Show.

Winners Picked At Lancaster County 4-H Dairy, Holstein Shows

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Paul Miller wasn't even expecting to take his cow to the Lancaster Holstein Association Show this week.

But he decided to at the last minute, when an older cow scheduled for the show turned up with a sore foot at Hilltop Heritage Holsteins where Miller keeps his dairy animals.

That let room on the trailer for Lira Goldie Astro, Miller's senior 3-year-old cow. She went on to be named grand champion of the show by judge Tom Boyer.

Miller of Harrisburg and Randy Frennier of New York state are co-owners of the champion cow, who was previously an All-Pennsylvania senior yearling.

Corby Ziegler of Manheim exhibited the youth grand champion cow, 4-year-old Legacy Lodge Tootsie.

Ziegler, 18, works fulltime for Lowell and Deb Brubaker on Hilltop Heritage Holsteins, Manheim.

Blake Brubaker showed the youth reserve champion, another 4-year-old cow, Fortise Rubens Pixie. Blake, 16, is the son of Lowell and Deb Brubaker.

Ziegler and Brubaker are members of Northwest Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Club.

Esther Trimble's winter yearling J-M-T Dundee was named the junior champion Holstein. Esther, 14, is a member of Kids and Kows 4-H Club and will be a

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
July 11, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending July 11 — NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY Total Receipts: 422,800; last week 249,400; last year 421,600. Direct: 111,500; last week 60,500; last year 90,000. Video/Internet: 145,900; last week 128,000; last year 161,500. Auctions: 165,400, last week 60,900; last year 170,100. This weeks reported auction volume included only 35 percent over 600 lbs and 41 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, yearling feeder steers and heifers sold 1.00-3.00 higher on tight supplies and very good demand as feedlots scramble to fill empty pens. Auction receipts were light this week but the large number of buyers on hand made it seem like late fall. The big-volume buyers are usually sporting flip-flops at the lake in early July - but this year they have their ostrich boots on, trying to knock the traders off of a few singles and odd-lots to scrounge a load of feeders together. Direct trading was also active this week, after recent Superior and Western video auctions set the price on country trades. Most of the direct sales in Texas and the Mountain states were for fall delivery, but Kansas reported numerous transactions for current delivery. Many Flint Hills grazers elect to double-stock their pastures early in the summer and these yearlings will be shipped within the next two weeks. Most of these 800 lb steers are selling in the 77.00-78.00 range, which according to the Futures Board have a snowballs chance of breaking even. However, these cattle appear affordable when compared to Western Cornbelt salebarns that have been selling 8 weight steers in the 90.00s and 7 weights over 100.00. Empty pens and abundant corn have the same effect on cattle feeders that green grass has on the backgrounder.

Stocker cattle and calf prices trended steady to 5.00 higher on light numbers in the Plains and Midwest. Southeastern markets lacked a comparison for last week but a definite higher undertone was noted. Most of the strength was placed on lightweights (under 500 lbs) as some producers have already cashed-in their yearlings and are looking to reload.

The fed cattle market failed to see the advance this week that most of the industry had expected. Most feedlots are very current as they continue to market aggressively. Since early May the weekly slaughter has averaged 750,000 head, with the exception of holiday weeks. So why are packers continuing to buy cattle at 74.00? (because they can).

Eastern Cornbelt Direct Feeder Cattle Weekly

Springfield, Ill.
July 11, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA
Eastern Cornbelt Direct

Feeder Cattle Summary — Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio: Compared to last week, feeder cattle were 2.00-4.00 higher. Demand was moderate. Trading activity was slow to moderate. Heavy rains in Illinois, Ohio and Indiana hampered trading in some areas. The stronger slaughter cattle market, availability of good pastures, the continued ban on Canadian cattle, and tight cattle supplies in the trade area supported feeder prices. Reported sales consisted of about 15% beef steers, 85% heifers and 0% Holstein steers. Approximately 82% of the cattle marketed this week weighed over 600 lbs. Confirmed sales 900 this week, 200 last week and 1000 last year.

Slaughter Cattle Weekly Review

Oklahoma City, Okla.
July 11, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL SLAUGHTER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending July 11; Slaughter cattle market steady with last week. Trading in the corn belt followed a smooth marketing pattern for the week. Sales in Nebraska were substantial clearing show lists by Thursday. Trade in the southern plains was stifled as sellers held their very current show lists for a raise in prices that has yet to materialize. Packers realizing strong margins but the dark cloud of the Canadian border question makes for more willing sellers. Cattle and beef supplies are growing burdensome in Canada and US sellers remain on the defensive. Clearance of beef over the holiday weekend was good and boxed values responded halting the declines and turning to the positive side. Boxed beef prices closed Thursday at an average of 127.02 up 1.48 from last week's close. Sales of slaughter cattle on a national basis for negotiated cash trades were 162,200 through 2:00 p.m. Thursday. Last week's full count was 217,700 head.

Outstanding Farm Family

"If we stay small, the problems are smaller," he said.

"I'm just a do-it-myself person."

"We do things by steps. The main thing is keeping the debt load small."

If the children prove to be interested in the farm, the couple will look more closely at expanding, he said.

Besides recently adding a heifer facility and mattresses, tunnel ventilation, a milking parlor and freestall barn are also on the list of improvements for the future.

Self-Education

The couple often takes advantage of the opportunity to attend open houses on other farms "to keep our options open," said Denise. "It's good to have an open mind instead of sticking to one idea."

Public auctions, one of Larry's hobbies, also provide the chance to talk to other farmers and learn still more.

Salesmen may also be a source of learning "what other farmers are doing, or what new products" are on the market, he said.

The Grumbines purhase feed, from several different businesses, which may also yield information as they work with different sources, they said.

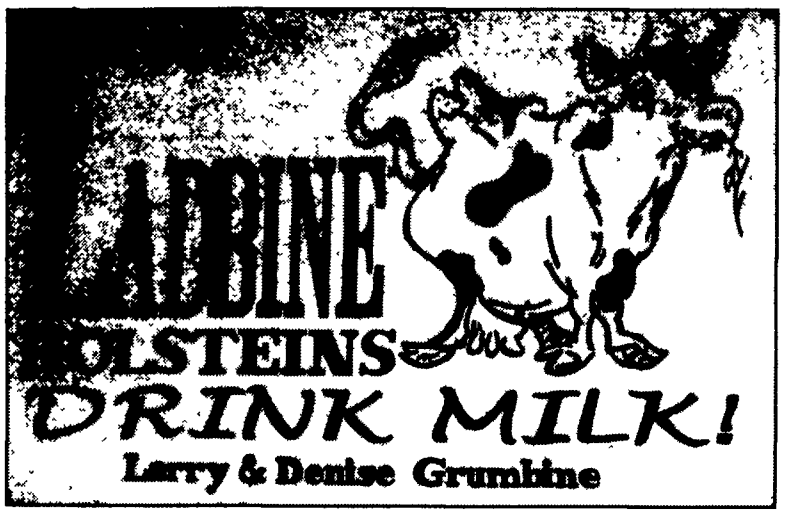
Working with an independent nutritionist who is in contact with several mills is also beneficial, both to compare prices and to see what each mill has to offer, believe the Grumbines.

Part of profitability means utilizing custom operators for some of the farm work to try to "keep equipment debt low," said Larry.

Farm Upgrades

The farm has been improved through such opportunities as the Chesapeake Bay Program, which enabled the Grumbines to put in a manure tank that is emptied twice a year.

The Grumbines have also installed strip cropping with financial help from the Natural Resource Conservation Service.



Denise designed and painted this sign for the farm. The name, "Ladbine Farm," is a combination of Larry and Denise Grumbine's names.

In addition, partnering with the Department of Environmental Protection has yielded fenced-in streams on the property.

4-H Members Honored

Besides honoring the Outstanding Farm Family, the Reading Fair Board will also recognize 4-H'ers Caitlin Ketterer and Cathy Levan as outstanding 4-H members.

Caitlin, Bernville, is the daughter of Jo-Ann and Brian Ketterer and is a five-year member of their Leesport 4-H Club. Besides holding several offices in the club, she has been a teen leader for five years.

Additionally, she has founded and is organizational leader for the 4-H cake decorating club. She has been active in the sewing and cooking projects with the Leesport club and has participated 4-H State Days and the County Fashion Revue, advancing to the Regional Fashion Revue four times, in addition to the State Fashion Revue.

A graduate of Tulpehocken High School, she plans to attend Albright College to major in secondary education.

Cathy Levan, Hamburg, is the daughter of Shirley and Paul Levan.

She is a 10-year member of the Berks County 4-H Swine Club, sheep club, and beef clubs.

During these years, she has received grand champion awards in showmanship and fitting in the three project areas. She also placed in the top five in the 4-H Swine Skill-A-thon for several years.

She has severed in leadership capacities in the livestock clubs and has organized and coached the Berks County participation in the Keystone Pork Bowl. She has also served as a 4-H Member on the Berks County 4-H Livestock Council.

Cathy plans to attend Reading Area Community College, then finish her education studying ag business at Penn State.

FFA Members Honored

FFA members that will be recognized are Kristy Dietrich and Justin Shupp.

Kristy, Hamburg, has served as FFA secretary and president. In addition she is accomplished in public speaking and livestock evaluation. She owns numerous beef animals in the family beef herd.

She has also been a member of 4-H for several years, exhibiting animals at various events. Kristy plans to attend Penn State Berks in the fall and major in an agriculturally-related major.

Justin Shupp, Birdsboro, is a graduate of Twin Valley High School. He is the son of Michael and Roxann Shupp and has held several FFA offices.

He has emphasized environmental studies and has won the regional forestry contest twice, in addition to placing second in the state forestry conference and being a member of the second-place team.

He has also won the regional wildlife competition twice, and has placed second in the state wildlife contest. He has helped to plant trees and with the border cutting project, besides cleaning and repairing nest boxes for the Pennsylvnaia Game Commission.

The game commission has honored him with state level awards. In January he was selected as the Eastern Pennsylvania Star in Specialty Agriculture for his conservation work. He has also chaired the school's Christmas tree recycling projects.

Shupp plans to major in forestry at Penn State this fall.

The Grumbines recently added a heifer facility.

CONTRACTING CORN SILAGE
Roland P. Freund
Regional Farm Management Agent
Carlisle

In a previous column article I discussed the importance of each small farmer specializing in some enterprise. The families in a community can all be better off by specializing than if everybody continues to try to do everything independently. In recent years there has been a steady trend toward specialization in the growing and supply of corn silage. This is beneficial to the corn grower and the dairyman.

But both parties need to agree upon terms and conditions under which the corn silage can be supplied and fair payment made. Conditions may vary from the dairy contracting with a corn grower to grow X acres and deliver to the dairy storage at harvest time, to a corn grower producing and storing silage and making daily delivery of the dairy's needs.

All those decisions! To assist in the process of arriving at a fair deal, I have prepared a checklist of about 40 points that parties to a silage deal should ponder. The worksheet accompanies this article.

The first thing to determine is if it will be a contract to grow — by the acre — or supply silage — by the ton. Points 1 to 5 of the checklist cover those questions.

• Contracting to grow — per acre. If the dairy manager wants a corn grower to plant, grow, and harvest X acres of corn silage on the dairy's land and/or Y acres elsewhere, he might negotiate this in the winter before planting. Then he can control such production practices as variety; planting date; application of lime, fertility, and chemicals; harvest stage; height of cut; and kernel processing. Under these terms the corn grower is basically providing a custom growing service and the dairy manager dictates and controls the growing process. Here the parties need to discuss points 6 through 27.

They might decide that the dairy should pay the grower a fair payment for the services and inputs rendered by the grower, plus the rent value of any land supplied in the deal. This might work out to something like $190 per acre on dairy's land or $250 on grower's land. If the dairy controls the growing, it should also bear the production or quality risks of drought, hail, or flood — or transfer those risks to crop insurance.

• Contracting to supply — per ton. It is too late in mid-summer to try to dictate many of the production practices as mentioned above. The dairy manager who did not contract with a corn grower to grow silage now has to find growers who have suitable fields of corn and negotiate with them to buy the silage. This time the grower is not furnishing a growing service but supplying a commodity — corn silage. The grower needs to get at least as much for the crop as it would bring if sold as shelled corn. Details of this transaction need to be discussed by working through points 1 through 5 and 16 through 40 of the checklist.

The prudent dairy manager now has the problem of calculating what the dairy can afford to pay for a given quantity (tons) of material of a specific quality (Dry Matter, NEL). The dairy needs to buy these nutrients in silage cheaper than it can deliver the same quantity and quality of nutrients to the feed bunk from other sources such as hay and grain. The grower and the buyer thus establish the minimum and maximum price range. This is the range in which they can strike a deal.

• Location and time of purchase per ton. A ton of corn silage standing in the field is worth far less than a ton of silage delivered to the feed bunk the following July. The nutritionists can probably tell you what the latter value is compared to substitutes. Unless the grower delivers the silage to the dairy feed bunk, the price should be adjusted for any costs to the buyer for harvesting, hauling, filling, storage losses, unloading and mixing.

Determining how many tons there are in a given transaction requires measurement. Ideally, every load should be weighed and moisture tested. If representative loads are weighed, then many samples should be drawn to arrive at a representative moisture level. The height of settled silage in an upright silo will probably give a more accurate tonnage than sampling loads.

• Complex computations. As I write this in the second week of July, I can't tell you what you should pay (or charge) for a ton of corn silage two months from now. But I can direct you to a Website where you can find this article, the worksheet, and a spreadsheet where you can put in all the factors discussed above to come up with a price range within which the silage deal might be struck. Go to http://cumberland.extension.psu.edu/Agriculture/FarmMgt/fmmgt.htm and click on "Contracting Corn Silage." If you do not have Web access, perhaps your nutritionist, accountant, or extension agent can assist you to access both the worksheet and the spreadsheet as discussed above.

Auction Raises More Than $10,000

er, owns the pig. The Penns Manor High School junior is the daughter of John and Jean Fyock, Penn Run.

The barn will provide the ability to raise animals for students who don't have the money, Carolyn noted. She spoke during the auction about her role as representative of the chapter. Carolyn's job: public relations, she noted, in sending out letters of support and making calls for the project.

Carolyn shows steers, lambs, and pigs at fairs and Farm Show.

About 95 items went on the auction block, including a patio glider, an all-metal garden fountain (retailing for more than $200, which sold for more than $225), and lots of commercial and chapter handmade crafts and gifts.

This year marked the first Chapter Golf Challenge. FFA chapters throughout the state were invited to recruit teams to represent their chapters and to compete for $400 in leadership scholarships. The FFA chapter represented by the winning team will receive the $400.

The chapter winning the challenge was New Oxford High School, represented by Bob Spertzel, Jack Sheehan, Scott Anderson, and Bob Conrad, who scored a 60 at Hawk Valley.

This year, all three teams at Foxchase were tied at 60. Scoring had to be determined hole-by-hole, starting from Hole 18, to determine who won.

Placing first at Foxchase was a team from Seltzers Smokehouse Meats, Palmyra and Jonestown Bank. From Seltzers, team members were Perry Smith and Bill Todd. From Jonestown Bank, team members were Tom Pearsall and Dave Steele.

Placing second at Foxchase was the team including Dave Huston, Scott Gold, Steve Moran, and Gary Robinson.

Foxchase third-place team from Eby Inc. included Menno Eby, Craig Hartranft, Mike Christoffel, and Pete Fredrickson.

Hawk Valley first place team, with a score of 58, included Madison Sons Construction, Carlisle, with representatives Dirk Madison, Vick Madison, Chris Milke, and Art Mattingly.

Hawk Valley second-place team members from New Holland Credit included John Burke, Greg Glaser, Marie Sipler, and Dave Duell.

Hawk Valley third place team members were the golf challenge chapter winners from Conewago-New Oxford FFA, Bob Conrad, Jack Sheehan, Scott Anderson, and Bot Spertzel.

All state FFA officers were also helping deliver fluids to thirsty golfers.

Lancaster Farming was also a hole sponsor.

New Leadership Appointed For Pa. 4-H

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Christy Bartley, youth program coordinator in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, has assumed additional duties as program leader for Pennsylvania 4-H, the 100-year-old youth development organization administered by Penn State Cooperative Extension.

As 4-H program leader, Bartley will establish a statewide strategic planning structure that will set the direction of the program by building on the needs of youth and volunteer leaders. She also is charged with developing 4-H programs that will be supported by new corporate and organizational partnerships.

"As the 4-H program leader, Christy will provide the desired visionary and contemporary leadership for our 4-H efforts across the commonwealth," said Blannie Bowen, head of the agricultural and extension education department. "She will interact with other state and national 4-H leaders who are confronting issues and opportunities similar to those that face our program. This interaction will allow us to have one of the strongest programs in the country."

Pennsylvania 4-H had been directed by Marilyn Corbin, state program leader for children, youth and families. "Christy's appointment will allow me more time to support a broader role for new children, youth and family program initiatives," said Corbin. "Additionally, I will continue to provide support for resource development for 4-H programs. We are very pleased to have Christy's leadership as she brings a wide-range of skills that will be most valuable to this position."

Bartley will provide leadership in evaluating 4-H programs and develop efficient programming practices to ensure strong county/state/regional collaborations. She will serve as Penn State Cooperative Extension's 4-H representative and liaison with state and federal agencies, including the Pennsylvania Departments of Agriculture and Education, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the National Leadership Trust, national and state program leaders, and National 4-H Council.

Bartley has served as youth program coordinator since 1994. Previously, she was a Penn State Cooperative Extension agent in Northampton and Monroe counties and a high school biology teacher. She earned a bachelor's degree in biology from Muhlenburg College and a master's degree in science education from Rutgers University. Bartley is a doctoral candidate in adult education at Penn State.

freshman at Lancaster Mennonite High School this fall.

She is the daughter of dairy farmers Marshall and Angela Trimble of Drumore. This season marks Esther's seventh year in the dairy show ring.

Tiffany Donough, a Northwest 4-H'er from Elizabethtown exhibited the reserve junior champion in the show.

Youth and open exhibitors brought a total of about 30 animals to the Holstein show, which took place at the Solanco Fairgrounds.

Hilltop Heritage Holsteins was named premier exhibitor, and Donegal Creek won the premier breeder award.

Youth also showed five colored breeds during the Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Show conducted the same day.

Andrew Smith, who will turn 17 this coming week, showed two breed champions: a Brown Swiss and a Guernsey.

Smith is the son of Tom and Dale Smith of King and Queen Farm, Denver. The Smiths manage a dairy farm with about 45 milking colored breed animals.

The Kauffman family, also of Denver, showed two breed champions: Toni, 11, exhibited the top Ayrshire; and Stephanie, 12, the champion Red and White. They are the daughters of Ann and Harold Kauffman.

Sandra Swendsen, 9, completed the colored breed champion line-up with her Jersey cow. Sandra is the daughter of Dale and Trudy Swendsen, Manheim.

Dean Daubert judged a total of 34 animals in the colored breed show, including 28 Brown Swiss.

Alfred State College To Showcase Its Programs At Empire Farm Days

ALFRED, N.Y. — The Agriculture and Horticulture Department at Alfred State College will sponsor an exhibit at this year's Empire Farm Days (EFD), Aug. 5, 6, and 7, Seneca Falls, an annual gathering of farmers, manufacturers, and policy makers who exchange ideas and "plug" into the excitement of agriculture in the Northeast.

For farmers, EFD is a direct link to new farm technologies, equipment, and ideas; for businesses, EFD means showing off products and services to key players in Northeast agriculture.

For Alfred State College, it's a chance to exhibit its involvement in the areas of ornamental horticulture/landscaping, dairy, and equine, and to highlight the arrival last year of seven miniature horses to visitors from the Northeast who are supremely interested in agriculture.

"We at Alfred State are proud of our dairy programs, and we have found our niche in training farmers who will operate the smaller dairy farms of the future. Our recruiting booth includes both agriculture and horticulture displays, and will be staffed throughout the entire show by our faculty and staff," notes Melvin Chambliss, DVM, associate professor and chair of the college's Agriculture and Horticulture Department.

Sponsored by Empire State Potato Growers at Rodman Lott and Son Farms, Rte. 414, Seneca Falls, Empire Farm Days has grown to be the largest outdoor three-day trade show in the Northeast with more than 600 exhibitors.

Alfred State College, a member of the technology college sector within the State University of New York (SUNY) system, is located in Alfred, N.Y., 15 miles north of the Pennsylvania border, 75 miles south of Rochester, and 90 miles southeast of Buffalo.

Washington County, Md. Ag Expo Aug. 1-8

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Washington County Ag Expo will be conducted Aug. 1-8, at the Washington County Agricultural Education Center, located on the Sharpsburg Pike, Route 65, seven miles south of Hagerstown, Maryland.

Ag Expo is a showcase of the agricultural products of Washington County. This is an affair for the whole family to see and learn what it takes to produce these products.

Exhibits and activities feature the 4-H/FFA youth of Washington County, including entries in home arts, horticulture and livestock. 4-H and FFA events include the 4-H Cake Auction at 6:30 p.m., on Aug. 1, and the 4-H Fashion Revue on Saturday, Aug. 2, at 4:30 p.m.

The fair opens on Friday, Aug. 1, with the Ag Expo Queen Contest at 5:30 p.m. followed by Twisted K's Professional Rodeo at 7 p.m. Admission price is $10.

Saturday, Aug. 2, is Family Night. Beginning with the Adult Barnyard Olympics, anyone 15 years and up with a team of four may compete in this wacky relay. Events following are an Animal Calling Contest, Tug-of-War, Ice Cream Eating, and Goat Milking Contests.

In Pennsylvania, about 40 inches of water falls yearly as rain or snow. Ten inches becomes surface runoff. Ten inches percolates into the groundwater. The rest evaporates or plants use it — eventually it returns to the air as water vapor. Groundwater supplies wells, but most of it slowly returns to the surface as stream or spring flow.

What area of your property is critical to your well water supply? Imagine building a fence around this area. Rain falling inside the fence becomes your drinking water.

Where would you put the fence? Draw a 200-foot circle with your well in the center. If your well is on a slope, adjust the fence. Cut the circle in half, forming an uphill part and a downhill part. Move the uphill part to the top of the hill and connect the two open sides with more fencing.

Now study the area inside the fence. Are there threats to your drinking water? Look for burn barrels, handling sites for gasoline and oil, animal wastes, fertilizers, pesticides, etc. Think about changing procedures or locations to minimize problems.

The only way to insure that a private water supply meets safe drinking water standards is to test it. Consider testing for contaminants that could originate inside the "fence." Include a coliform bacteria test annually. Test for nitrate, pH, and total dissolved solids every three years.

The water test is satisfactory when coliform bacteria are absent. Coliform bacteria live in the intestines of people and warm-blooded animals. They also occur in the topsoil. While coliform bacteria do not cause disease, their presence indicates disease organisms could be present.

More than 10 milligrams per liter of nitrate nitrogen can cause "blue baby syndrome" (methemoglobinemia) in infants less than 6 months old. This is only a problem when the baby's formula is prepared with high nitrate water. Stomach bacteria change nitrate to nitrite, which mimics oxygen. The blood carries nitrite in place of oxygen, causing the baby to turn blue from lack of oxygen. Once the baby's stomach begins producing acid at about six months, the bacteria cannot survive and there is no further danger.

A pH of 7.0 is neutral (neither acid nor alkaline). Water having a pH lower than 6.5 may dissolve some of the metals (iron, copper, lead, cadmium, and zinc) used in the plumbing, adding metals and taste to your water. Acid water does not affect plastic plumbing. Water with a pH above 8.5 is alkaline and is likely to have a bitter taste. This is rarely a problem in Pennsylvania.

High total dissolved solids may add a noticeable taste to water. High total dissolved solids are the result of the water being in contact with rocks in the aquifer for a long time. The deeper the well, the greater chance that total dissolved solids will be elevated. These solids affect the taste of water, but are not a health problem. They are tested because this an inexpensive way of monitoring for changing conditions in the aquifer.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — On Wednesday, representatives from Lancaster County's two farmland preservation organizations met to install a sign marking the preservation of 346 contiguous acres of farmland.

The four West Hempfield properties, owned by Daniel and Dorothy Forry, are located west of Lancaster city, north of Rt. 30 just after the Prospect Road exit, and are important preserved farms because of their extensive road frontage, proximity to other development, excellent soils, and large critical mass.

A great deal of the acreage is visible from Rt. 30, and this tract of land is one of the few remaining along Route 30 that has not been converted to industrial, commercial, or residential use.

The Forrys, who initially owned only the 85-acre and 98-acre properties, became interested in purchasing the 59- and 104-acre properties adjacent to those farms nine years ago when their youngest son Dwight, who majored in large animal science at Delaware Valley College, informed his parents of his interest in farming. Dwight is the fifth generation to farm the Forry land. The couple used the funds they received from the preservation of their 85- and 98-acre farms to help purchase the adjacent properties.

The preservation of the acreage in the summer of 2001 (the 104-acre property, where the sign will be placed, was preserved in 2002) was the fourth of five joint preservation projects between Lancaster Farmland Trust and the Agricultural Preserve Board. The impetus for the majority of these partnerships has been that the farms are under urgent development pressure and must be preserved more quickly than the Ag Preserve Board can accommodate (because of their waiting list), but at a higher cost than the Trust can provide.

The sign marking this joint preservation project is based on the Trust's original 4 square foot signs designed by Russ Cox of Smiling Otis Designs, and was modified and constructed by Jim Preis of Dundore Signs, Lebanon.

Reman Bale Stacker

Saving you time, manpower and equipment

Timing is everything especially when it comes to haying. There are so many uncontrollable variables like, weather, temperature and time—that is until now. The Reman Bale Stacker gets your bales off the field quicker than any other system. Not only does its patented system save you time, it frees up manpower and equipment.

So now whether you are trying to maintain the moisture of your forage or beat the rain to your hay. The Reman Bale Stacker is the answer for you.

With the Reman you only need one man, one tractor and the Bale Stacker. Each bale is picked up and stacked in a sturdy twelve bale stack every time.

The Bale Stacker is a remarkably adaptable machine. Designed for the field, it is able to pick up bales without problems—even under difficult operating conditions. It's simple operation allows you to follow the path of the baler and pick up bales as fast as they are made, avoiding time-costly cross-tracking.

Its unique design also allows you to pick up different lengths of bales without adjustments to the machine between loads.

When it's time to unload, the rear deck tips all twelve bales effortlessly into a tight freestanding stack without any other equipment or manpower in less than a minute.

Each feature of the Reman Bale Stacker is designed with the end user in mind. From durability and adaptability to safety and performance the Reman Bale Stacker was designed and built for you.

The patented clamp and kicker keeps bales under constant control, not relying on bale free-fall for proper system functioning.

Pa. Meat Goat Test Starts

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Livestock Evaluation Center wishes to announce the start of the first Pennsylvania Performance Testing Program for meat goats.

The goat test is running in concordance with the annual performance ram test at the Livestock Evaluation Center in State College.

The purpose of this Meat Goat test is to identify bucks that excel in growth and meat production characteristics.

The Pennsylvania Livestock Evaluation Center provides standardized testing for evaluating rate of gain, structural soundness, and estimated carcass merit in meat goat sires.

There are 24 recorded Boer bucks on test (12 full bloods, 10 7/8 bloods and two half-blood Boers), that are consigned by producers from Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, and West Virginia. The bucks will be on a 63-day test periodically being weighed to evaluate average daily gain and weight per day of age.

Following the test the goats will be ultrasonically scanned for fat thickness and muscling and have a breeding soundness exam to ensure the buck is a capable sire.

Approximately the top 75 percent of the prospective sires will be sold on August 2, at the Pennsylvania Performance Tested Stud Ram and Goat Sale.

This sale and field day is the first planned activity in Pennsylvania's brand new Livestock Evaluation Center.

This sale provides an opportunity for purebred breeders and commercial producers to purchase performance tested Rams and goats, which have been evaluated in part under similar, unbiased, management and environmental conditions.

In addition to the stud sale on August 2, is an invitational ewe sale for producers participating in the test, as well as Pennsylvania's annual Sheep Producers Field Day.

In the past few years, demand for meat goats has risen dramatically in the Mid-Atlantic region. The meat goat test was requested by Pennsylvania's livestock producers in an effort to better the genetic base and further the industry, while at the same time making these tested goats available to goat producers.

This performance goat test will be the first in the eastern United States and one of three in the nation.

The Pennsylvania Livestock Evaluation Center hopes to accommodate improvement of the Meat Animal Industries through genetic testing. This new meat goat test adds to the current testing of bulls, rams and boars that the Livestock Evaluation Center facilitates.

The goat performance test also begins as the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is unveiling a new state of the art testing station, which will house these animals for future tests.

The Pennsylvania Livestock Evaluation Center is the only livestock testing station in the United States that tests these four species. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture conducts the performance testing programs as a service to Pennsylvania's livestock producers.

Approximately the top 75 percent of the prospective sires will be sold on August 2, at the Pennsylvania Performance Tested Stud Ram and Goat Sale.

The purpose of this Meat Goat test is to identify bucks that excel in growth and meat production characteristics.

Clair E. Nolt and his family reside on the farm located at 1126 Mill Road, Sporting Hill, which is a small village southwest of Manheim. His parents, Miles and Irene Nolt, now live in Manheim.

Miles Nolt is well known as a consistent winner at the Pennsylvania Farm show for his entries of black walnuts, English walnuts, butternuts, hickories and pecans. In the afternoon, he will conduct a tour of the farm which has over 100 mature persimmon and nut trees.

In addition to the PNGA business meeting and the orchard tour, the day's program includes a talk by Ray Curanzy on his research on how Mycorrhizae can aid in transplanting young trees; Lois Davie sharing her years of joy growing nut trees; a presentation on new products by Tucker Hill; a grafting demonstration by Jay Book; and the annual auction to benefit the organization's general fund.

Attendees are requested to bring their own lawn chairs, silverware and plates and two homemade dishes (with nuts) to share. Drinks will be provided.

Directions to the farm: From the Pennsylvania Turnpike: Exit 20, Lebanon-Lancaster; take Route 72 South into Manheim; at second light, turn right onto Route 772; stay on 772 to Sporting Hill (about 1.5 miles) to Colebrook Road; turn left onto Colebrook Road and watch for school on left; after school, turn left onto Mill Road; first farm is Nolt's at number 1126.

Assuring Beef Quality

agent.

About 25 producers who attended the meeting had a chance to practice giving well-placed shots to heifers.

They also watched a necropsy on a calf that had been injected both correctly and incorrectly at various places on its body.

Dr. Jody Wade of Fort Dodge Animal Health performed the necropsy. He made a strong, clear case for good injection techniques by showing the group a number of tough, discolored lesions on meat created by misplaced injections in muscle.

Researchers doing tenderness studies on intramuscular injection sites "had to move four inches away from where the shot was given to get back to normal tissue," Wade said.

Consumers who come across a steak from such a site are likely to be turned off of eating beef, Wade noted. The major problem is "unpleasant dining experiences," he said.

It's not the volume of an injection that ruins beef as much as how the shot is placed, according to Wade.

"It's location, location, location," he said.

Dairy farmers need to quit giving shots in the hindquarter muscle and learn to inject subcutaneously (just under the skin) in the triangular area on the upper part of the neck (see picture diagram.) They also need to make sure the needles they use aren't too long — preferably just 5/8-3/4 inch, Wade said. Needle ends should also have a short, not a long, bevel to prevent them from accidentally entering the muscle, according to Wade.

Many drugs formerly used for intramuscular injections are now labeled for subcutaneous use, Wade pointed out. By following the label instructions and locating shots properly, beef quality can be preserved.

"Today, you need to be a very good label reader," he said.

Dairy producers at the meeting took a test in order to become certified under the larger Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) program. Those eligible will receive blue tags for their cattle, signifying producer certification under BQA.

Slayton said the Pennsylvania Beef Council is working with major meat packers to gain recognition of the blue tags as a symbol of reliable, quality beef. The PBC estimates that dairy cull cow market prices can eventually be raised about $70 a head through dairy farmers gaining packer trust by delivering quality beef to the market on a consistent basis.

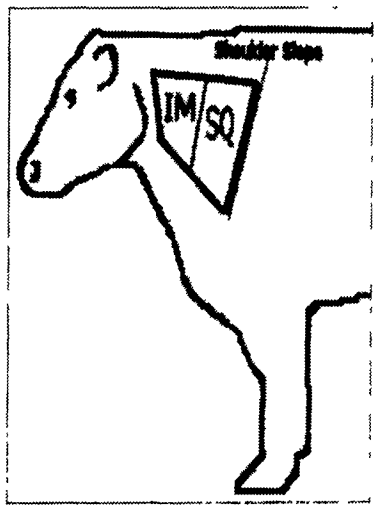
About half the beef from dairy cows goes for whole meat cuts used in foods such as marinated steaks, deli and fast food roast beef, Philly steak sandwiches, and fajitas, according to the PBC.

John Adams of the NMPF said the DBQA program will be expanding in the region based on its success in Pennsylvania.

A DBQA meeting set for Harrisburg in early September will represent the program's official launch. Watch upcoming issues of Lancaster Farming for details.

Paul Slayton of the Pennsylvania Beef Council helps Barbara Soga of Kutztown get ready to inject a heifer for practice.

During a calf necropsy, Dr. Jody Wade shows a lesion created by an injection in the muscle.



This diagram shows the proper area for injecting cattle intramuscularly (IM) and subcutaneously (SQ). Use the subcutaneous method whenever possible, veterinarians say.

OPINION

consumers for years, only beef can deliver the power punch of zinc, iron, and protein — critical nutrients that are often missing from our diet. Filet mignon anyone?

During the BSE or "Mad Cow" incident in Canada, the beef checkoff helped the industry speak with a unified voice. Despite heavy media attention, 85 percent of consumers remain confident in the safety of the U.S. beef supply.

If you are a regular subscriber to Lancaster Farming, you have read and seen beef checkoff programs at work in Pennsylvania.

A beef quality assurance program has certified more than 850 producers in best management practices during the last two years. The beef checkoff's next quality assurance audience in the commonwealth? Dairy producers — a large supplier of beef in Pennsylvania. State retailers are unveiling new cuts in their meat case thanks to checkoff-funded research.

There are other benefits as well:

- Beef and veal marketing partnerships with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.
- May Beef Month celebrations.
- "Tween" girls and their parents learning about beef's nutrition message at Philadelphia Charge women's soccer games.
- Culinary students creating new recipes with veal, ensuring that the next generation of foodservice professionals incorporates veal into their menus.

I am proud of the beef checkoff and its accomplishments, nationally and in Pennsylvania. Not only do I direct the state's program, I help fund it. As a beef producer from Bedford County, I routinely sell cattle — and routinely remit my checkoff dollars.

The beef industry believes in the merits of our case and the merits of the checkoff. We are confident that the beef checkoff will ultimately prevail. In the interim, I encourage you to contact our office with any questions about the beef checkoff. We also invite state agricultural groups to nominate producer leaders to our board every year — we are accepting nominations. If you are interested in helping to shape checkoff programs in Pennsylvania, please contact our office at (717) 939-7000.

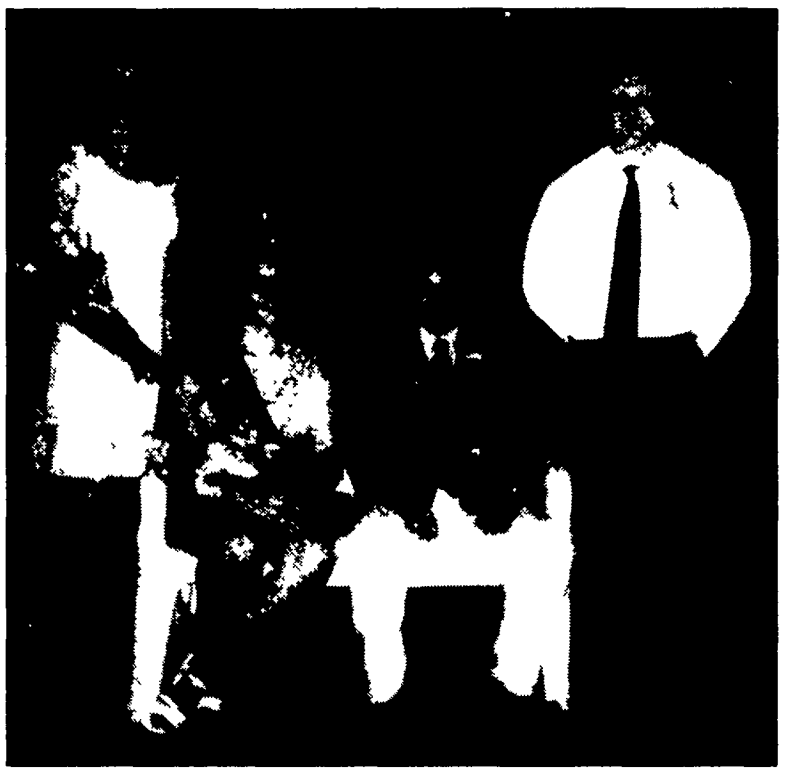
Jodi Keith, Doug Sattazahn To Represent Pennsylvania Grange Youth in 2003

CHARLENE SHUPP
Special Correspondent

PETERSBURG (Huntingdon County) — After a day-long competition that included a Grange knowledge test, interviews, and an impromptu question, the judges selected Jodi Keith of Entriken, Huntingdon County and Doug Sattazahn of Womelsdorf, Berks County as the 2003 Pennsylvania State Grange Youth Ambassadors.

For the next year, Jodi and Doug will travel across Pennsylvania to promote the Pennsylvania State Grange and participate in several state Grange activities including state session in October and at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The first runner-ups were Shelly Reppert, Hamburg, Berks County and Bryan Van Tassell, New Castle, Lawrence County. The annual contest was held in conjunction with Grange Youth Camp at Camp Blue Diamond in Petersburg, Huntingdon County.



Outgoing Youth Ambassadors Marci Schaeffer and Brad Van Tassel (standing) congratulate Jodi Keith and Doug Sattazahn.

Youth Ambassador Jodi Kieth is a member of Lincoln Grange in Huntingdon County where she currently serves as assistant Junior Leader. A long time Grange member, Jodi has taken on many leadership roles that has resulted in her holding most offices in her local Junior Grange.

Outside of Grange she is active in 4-H, FFA, Band, Chorus, Key Club, and is this year's Huntingdon County Alternate Dairy Princess. Jodi also enjoys playing soccer and showing cows. Her future plans are to enter a hospital based radiology program after graduation from Huntingdon Area High School, where she is currently a senior.

Jodi is excited and ready to begin a busy year of promoting Grange. When asked for an idea on how to increase youth participation in Grange, she reflects on her love of soccer noting that she would love to "organize a soccer tournament to bring Grange members together for fun and fellowship."

Joining Jodi in promoting Grange is Doug Sattazahn. Doug will be attending Penn State-University Park in the fall to major in Animal Science. Although he will be in college, Doug plans to remain active in his local grange, Marion Grange, serving on the Fair Display Committee.

Doug also enjoys participating in 4-H, baseball, his local Junior Holstein Club, and showing dairy cows. After graduation from Penn State, Doug hopes to either own a dairy farm or enter into Ag Business.

In his thoughts on how to increase youth participation in Grange activities, Doug is quick to say, "(We need) programs for youth and older member to work on together at the local level. Youth participation has to start at the local level and then move onto the county and state."

During the coronation, outgoing Youth Ambassadors Marci Schaeffer of Mertztown, Berks County and Brad Van Tassel of New Castle, Lawrence County reflected on their year as "one of great experiences and fun."

Each also took time to thank the State Youth Directors, Floyd and Andrea Buffington, their parents, family, and friends for their support during their year.

In her remarks to the contestants and audience at the coronation, State Master Betsy Huber congratulated the finalists for their achievements and encouraged each one to stay active in Grange programs.

Other finalists in this year's Youth Ambassador Contest were Rachel Nelson, Warren, Warren County; Whitney Van Ord, Tidioute, Warren County; Brittany Schaeffer, Mertztown, Berks County; Kolby Hollabaugh, Pittsfield, Warren County; Justin Hollabaugh, Pittsfield Warren County; and Troy Winkels, Warren, Warren County.

LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND AGRICULTURE
Daniel Heller
Flintrock Farms
Member of The Lancaster Chamber Ag Committee

Agriculture and Lancaster County have been so intricately tied together, it is hard for us to imagine a Lancaster County without our rolling farms. However, for those who think they are in a cozy cocoon where farms and farming practices will always be protected, allowed and understood, the winds of change are blowing.

Local municipalities are becoming increasingly involved in regulating, controlling, and restricting agriculture. Being involved in what is happening at your local township is vitally important to the future of your farm and the generations to come.

The regulations being implemented today will have a profound impact on the future direction of farming. Local governments that restrict agriculture are becoming more common than ever before. Even in some of our most rural areas, agriculture is becoming a target of a new wave of restrictive ordinances being purported by groups and individuals without a full understanding of modern farms.

We in agriculture recognize that we are faced with challenges that require innovative changes to allow our farms to stay competitive in the marketplace. However, we must not lose sight of the fact that those around us may not know the needs of a competitive modern farming operation. Public perceptions have been shaped by historical views of the proverbial "Old McDonald Farm."

We must be willing to be actively involved in our communities, communicating agriculture to those around us who are unfamiliar with farming operations and the value they bring to our society by providing a safe and secure source of food to our local, national, and global communities.

We must also stay tuned to the actions of our local municipalities. As ordinances are updated and changed, many have been fraught with unreasonable and extremely restrictive regulations that prevent or substantially hinder agriculture and the future growth of it. Extremely large setbacks, odor emissions, water usage, and even ownership structure have all been issues that have come up recently in local township ordinances.

Many times no one in agriculture is involved or providing feedback in the process. Therefore, we in agriculture must answer the call to protect what we hold on to.

If you encounter a proposed ordinance in your township that is unfairly restrictive of agriculture, a good place to start is your local county conservation district. Shelly Dehoff, agriculture/public liaison for the Pennsylvania Conservation Districts, is able to provide effective assistance in navigating the complexities of some of these proposed ordinances.

She can be reached at (717) 808-0848.

Other agriculture associations such as The Farm Bureau, Penn Ag Association, and The Lancaster Chamber Ag Program are active in assisting in these areas.

The Lancaster Chamber recently conducted a symposium with township officials from all over the county to discuss and promote agriculture friendly planning. For more information on The Lancaster Chamber's Ag Program, visit www.lancasterchamber.com/ag.

Wolff To Create Dairy Task Force

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In an effort to improve the competitive position of the state's dairy farmers, on Thursday Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Dennis C. Wolff announced that he will form a statewide Dairy Task Force to review and strengthen Pennsylvania's dairy industry.

Wolff, a dairy farmer, said that Pennsylvania's dairy industry is the largest segment of Pennsylvania agriculture, and its success is critical to the economic health of the state's economy. However, he said the industry has been experiencing a 25-year low on dairy prices.

"Launching this initiative now is important because of the current milk price concerns and the troubling dairy farm trend lines," Wolff said while announcing the task force at a meeting of the Dairy Farmers of American Northeast Area Council and Dairylea Cooperative Board of Directors in Wilkes-Barre.

"Pennsylvania needs its 9,000 dairy farms. We simply cannot permit this trend to continue. I want to work with this Task Force to explore what the industry and the Department can do to stem the decline in dairy farms.

"Pennsylvania is the fourth largest dairy producing state, and we want to grow the industry, not shrink it. To do this will require the collective efforts of all of us — government, industry and consumers. We have the right ingredients for success —productive, hard-working farm families, a strong animal genetic base, fertile soil, a supportive state government, cooperative extension service, a diversified agribusiness community, food processors, and 12 million consumers. We need to leverage our strengths and cooperate to advance the dairy industry."

Wolff said the Dairy Task Force will be comprised of dairy producers, education and agriculture organizations, state and federal government agencies, and other industry stakeholders. It will develop a Dairy Action Plan that will address the social and economic issues facing Pennsylvania's dairy industry and our rural communities.

"The Rendell administration believes that the future of dairy farming in Pennsylvania depends on the decisions that will be made in the next several years," Wolff said. "The Dairy Action Plan will focus on increasing cooperation between farmers and various farming interests, and enabling them to work toward goals mutually beneficial to the industry and the commonwealth."

Wolff said the plan includes the establishment of a Dairy Assistance Program to coach farmers on ways to increase efficiency and profitability. The Dairy Task Force also will work with government agencies to offer economic development incentives, loans, and grants for Pennsylvania dairy farms. It also will build upon existing programs by such organizations as the Dairy Stakeholders, Professional Dairy Managers, and the Dairy Alliance.

The Dairy Task Force is expected to conduct its first meeting in early August.

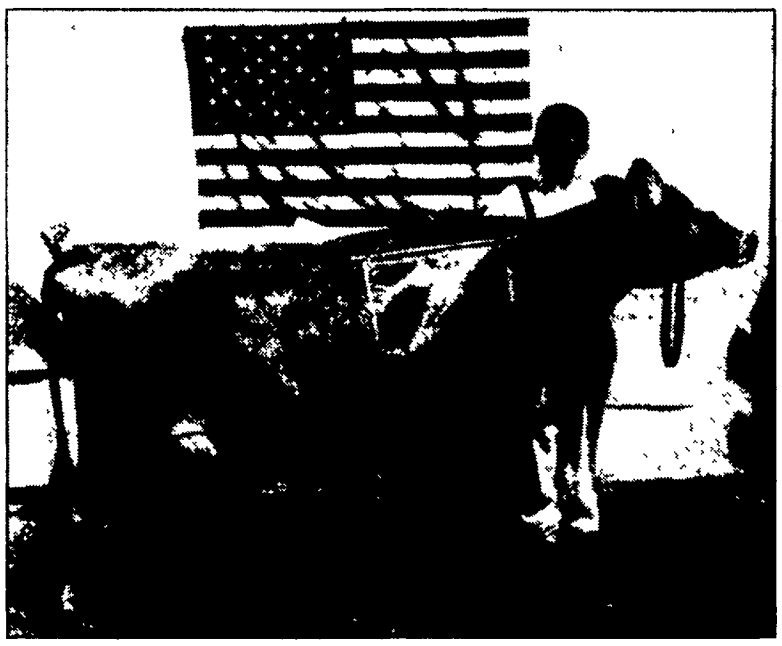
SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — When Dillon Cotter, a soon-to-be seventh-grader at Berlin Elementary School, entered the show ring with his "Abbie" Jersey cow at the Somerset County Junior Dairy Show, held last week at the county fairgrounds in Meyersdale, he never expected to win top prize.

But Dillon and "Abbie" walked away with the supreme championship title in a show with 67 exhibitors and 163 animals.

"I really like to show her (the dairy cow) and I like to be in the show ring," said Dillon, son of Karen and Keith Cotter of Glencoe and a member of Milksquirts 4-H Club.

His show cow is owned by the Stoltzfus family in Berlin and Dillon, who lives a few miles away from the Stoltzfus farm, regularly works with her.



Dillon Cotter, a soon-to-be seventh-grader at Berlin Elementary School this fall, won supreme champion honors at the Somerset County Junior Dairy Show, conducted at the Somerset County Fairgrounds in Meyersdale last week. He is the son of Karen and Keith Cotter of Glencoe.

"It (4-H) gives kids responsibility and it helps them to practice for the fair," said Dillon's mom Karen. "4-H is a good thing and the kids involved in it are good leaders."

The divisions at the show included Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey, Red and White, Milking Shorthorn, Ayrshire and Brown Swiss. Also, the show had junior, intermediate and senior showmanship divisions.

The first class up was the Holstein division. Jenna Fox, daughter of Jill and John Fox of Rockwood, won the grand champion in the Holstein division, while Luther Hillegass of Berlin won reserve champion.

Both are members of Milkshakers 4-H Club. Matt Mosholder of Rockwood won best animal bred and owned in the Holstein division. He is a member of the Rockwood FFA.

Kara Savage of Salisbury won the grand champion as well as reserve champion in the Guernsey division. She is the daughter of Deane and Nancy Savage of Salisbury and a member of Milkshakers 4-H Club. Also in the Guernsey division, Justin Kaufman of Friedens won best animal bred and owned.

In the Jersey division, Dillon Cotter, who later won grand champion of the show, won grand champion in this division. Also, Scott Leister of Glencoe won reserve grand champion, while Kari Hostetter of Rockwood won best animal bred and owned.

Family Takes Top Honors

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — The Hillegass family, owners of Hillmont Farm near the Shanksville area, took top honors at the Somerset County Holstein Show conducted last week at the Somerset County Fairgrounds in Meyersdale.

Alec Hillegass of Shanksville Road won grand champion cow in the open show as well as the junior show. He is the son of Kirk and Tine Hillegass.

The 12-year-old beamed with excitement as his cow Hillmont's RM "Twink" stole the show out of about 145 entries.

"It was a huge shock for me," said Alec, a soon-to-be seventh-grader at Berlin Brothersvalley High School this fall. "I thought I maybe could win my class but that's all. I couldn't be happier with this cow."

Alec explained that his cow is so young and she just had her first calf so he and his family didn't think a win was likely.

Young Alec loves farm life and is in the barn several hours a day. His farm, now operated by his parents, was originally operated by his grandparents, Jay and Connie Hillegass, who have since retired.

"We really worked hard for this accomplishment," said Juliana afterwards, "and we couldn't have done it without my brother Luke." Luke, 14, also showed his cows in the show. Juliana said that the three siblings work together as a team.

Juliana, whose major is biology at Juniata, is probably not the typical 20-year-old. She has a passion for working with animals and showing dairy cows.

"I love working with the animals and I plan to study reproductive physiology in grad school and possibly go into research with dairy cows," said Juliana.

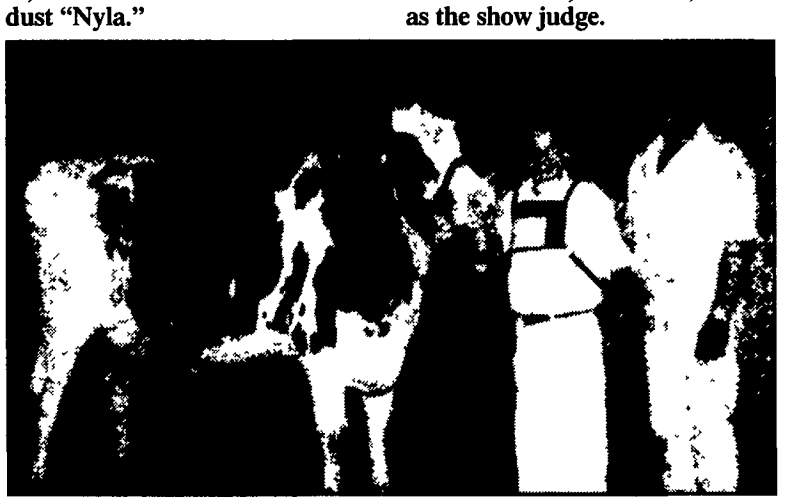
In the open show, Harvey Stoltzfus of Berlin won best animal bred and owned. And Matt Mosholder of Rockwood won best animal bred and owned in the junior show.

Oakview Ridge Farms, Accident, Md., received the title of premier breeder for the open show, followed by Pennwood Farms of Berlin as 1st runner up, and Hillmont Farms near Shanksville as 2nd runner up.

Pennwood Farms of Berlin received the title of premier exhibitor in the open show, followed by Hillmont Farms as first runner up, and Oakview Ridge as second runner up.

Jenna Fox of Rockwood received the title of premier exhibitor for the junior show and Matt Mosholder of Rockwood received the title of premier breeder for the junior show.

Steve Wood, Littleston, served as the show judge.



Alec Hillegass, 12, of the Shanksville area in Somerset County, took home the grand champion title during the Somerset County Holstein Show, conducted last week at the Somerset County Fairgrounds in Meyersdale. He is pictured with show judge Steve Wood of Littleston.

In addition, majority of the producers finished up in the hay fields last week before the weekend rains. Beef Collections Will Continue As Legal Process Moves Forward

DENVER, Colo. — Although The Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld a ruling that the checkoff program is unconstitutional, collections of beef checkoff assessments continue pending further notification from the court and USDA.

The Cattlemen's Beef Board has asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Justice attorneys representing the checkoff program to begin the appeal process with the United States Supreme Court.

The Department of Justice, which represents USDA and the Beef Board, now has 45 days to decide whether to ask for a rehearing by the full slate of judges that sit on the Eighth circuit in St Louis. The Department of Justice can also seek review of the case by the U. S. Supreme Court.

According to the ruling by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, the stay of Judge Kornmann's injunction against collection of the checkoff will remain in place pending further filings in this case and normal collections should continue unless the court and USDA direct us to stop.

Remittances not received by the due date will be treated as non-compliance. Late fees will accrue accordingly.

A Reference Guide For Exhibiting Animals At Fairs

Kristen Rotz
Director Of Regulatory Programs
Pennsylvania Farm Bureau

In 2002, legislation was enacted which affected the rules governing health requirements for animals enrolled for competition or show in exhibitions such as county agricultural fairs or the state farm show. As we enter into the fair season, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau has developed a summary, by species, of requirements that must be met in accordance with the new state law, which aims to ensure the health and safety of Pennsylvania's animal population, as well as the health of people attending the fair.

This law not only affects procedures for enrolling in an exhibition — it will also slightly alter the look of the fairground this year. Several sanitation standards are implemented by this legislation, including an "adequate hand-cleansing facility for adults and children" which will be conveniently located on the animal exhibition grounds with notices posted encouraging handwashing after touching animals or using the restroom and before eating.

The following rules are applicable to:

- An agricultural fair, defined as one operated in a manner which makes it eligible for a grant under the Pennsylvania Agricultural Fair Act (Act 92 of 1986).
- A petting zoo.
- An event where animals are displayed on animal exhibition grounds for view and physical contact under one of the three following conditions: if the operator advertises the event, if the operator charges an admission fee for access to the animals, or if there is a retail food establishment on the grounds.

Act 211 of 2002 states, "A person may not bring an animal to an animal exhibition unless the person has an established veterinarian-client-patient relationship," (3 Pa.C.S.A 2502 (3)). Because of this new regulation, all species up for show will require an "Animal Owner or Caretaker's Verification of Veterinarian-Client-Patient Relationship Form" which must be presented at all shows and fairs in Pennsylvania.

For clarification purposes, what has popularly been called a health certificate or health chart, has now been renamed the Certificate of Veterinary Inspection, also known as Form AAI-13. As was previously applicable according to section 102.23 of the Pennsylvania Code:

- No poultry or livestock from a premises under quarantine for a contagious or infectious disease is eligible to be exhibited.
- No poultry or livestock showing evidence of infectious, contagious, or parasitic diseases will be admitted to a show.
- Livestock or poultry not representative of their species due to conformation conditioning or of a fractious nature is not eligible to be exhibited.

All participants should consult fair premium books containing rules for a particular fair. There may be additional animal health specifications for each individual event.

Horses

An "Animal Owner or Caretaker's Verification of Veterinarian-Client-Patient Relationship Form" must be presented upon arrival at all shows and fairs in Pennsylvania, including out-of- state entries.

Horses must be accompanied by an approved Certificate of Veterinary Inspection which must be available at all times for additional inspections.

Solid color animals must be identified by some method of unique identification, e.g. lip tattoo, brand, distinctive marks, etc.

In order to avoid spread of equine infectious anemia, all horses must be official ELISA or AGID test negative within one year of admission to the show.

Immunizations for contagious respiratory disease should be administered not less than 15 days before a show.

In addition, 4-H Horse and Pony Rules require that animals entered in 4-H horse shows must be vaccinated against rabies at least one month, but not more than 12 months before the opening of the show.

Dairy And Beef Cattle

An "Animal Owner or Caretaker's Verification of Veterinarian-Client-Patient Relationship Form" must be presented upon arrival at all shows and fairs in Pennsylvania, including out-of- state entries.

Animals must bear unique, permanent identification, such as an official ear tag or breed registration tattoo, and be accompanied by an approved Certificate of Veterinary Inspection which must be available at all times for additional inspections.

The Certificate of Veterinary Inspection must certify that an animal has been immunized against Infectious Bovine Rhinotracheitis (IBR), Parainfluenza3 (PI3), and Bovine Viral Diarrhea (BVD).

Note: If your animal has never been vaccinated against BVD, it must receive one dose of modified live virus vaccine at least 15 days, or not more than 180 days before the show, or two doses of killed vaccine two to four weeks apart with the last vaccine given not less than 15 days and not more than 180 days from the opening day of the show.

No tuberculosis test or brucellosis test is required for Pennsylvania cattle. For out-of-state cattle, a tuberculosis test is required, and a brucellosis test is required if the state is not classified as brucellosis-free.

Sheep

An "Animal Owner or Caretaker's Verification of Veterinarian-Client-Patient Relationship Form" must be presented upon arrival at all shows and fairs in Pennsylvania, including out-of-state entries.

An official Certificate of Veterinary Inspection must accompany the sheep to the show and be available at all times for additional inspections.

Purebred animals must be identified by registry name and number corresponding to the ear tag or tattoo number. Grade animals must be identified by a farm-flock number, which corresponds to the ear tag or tattoo number.

Flocks must be examined within 30 days of the opening date of show. The veterinarian who has examined the entries and the flocks from which they come must certify on the Certificate of Veterinary Inspection that he has found no evidence of transmissible disease and to the best of his knowledge, no exposure thereto and the animals are not subject to any quarantine restrictions.

The owner and an accredited veterinarian must provide certification stating that the identified animal is not known to have been exposed to Scrapie.

Dipping is not required of sheep from officially recognized scabies free areas: all other sheep must be dipped in an officially permitted solution within 10 days of the opening date of the show.

All sheep except wethers must bear an official USDA/APHIS eartag to be exhibited at the show. Sheep from flocks on the Voluntary Scrapie Eradication program must bear the official tag, tattoo, or electronic ear implant.

Swine

An "Animal Owner or Caretaker's Verification of Veterinarian-Client-Patient Relationship Form" must be presented upon arrival at all shows and fairs in Pennsylvania, including out-of-state entries.

An official certificate of veterinary inspection must accompany all swine and be issued within 30 days of the opening date of the show.

For Pennsylvania swine, a pseudorabies test is required, but a brucellosis test is not required.

All swine must be negative to a USDA approved pseudorabies test conducted within 30 days of arrival at the show OR be a member of a qualified Pseudorabies-Negative Herd. The Qualified Pseudorabies Negative Herd number and the date of the last quarterly or monthly herd test must be on the Certificate of Veterinary Inspection. The certificate of veterinary inspection must show this statement: Herd of origin has shown no evidence of pseudorabies within the past twelve months.

For out-of-state swine: All breeding swine over 6 months of age must be negative to a brucellosis test within 30 days of opening date of show OR originate from a validated brucellosis-free swine herd.

Goats

An "Animal Owner or Caretaker's Verification of Veterinarian-Client-Patient Relationship Form" must be presented upon arrival at all shows and fairs in Pennsylvania, including out-of-state entries.

An official Certificate of Veterinary Inspection should accompany the animals and be available at all times for additional inspections. Each animal should be individually identified on the certificate.

All goats must have an official eartag or legible breed registration tattoo.

All goats except wethers must bear an official USDA/APHIS ear tag to be exhibited at the show. The only exceptions are those goats that have a registration tattoo and have been coded with a premise I.D. number.

Neither tuberculosis nor Brucellosis tests are required.

Poultry/Pigeons

An "Animal Owner or Caretaker's Verification of Veterinarian-Client-Patient Relationship Form" must be presented upon arrival at all shows and fairs in Pennsylvania, including out-of-state entries.

A Certificate of Veterinary inspection must be presented upon arrival and be available for further inspections.

All entries of live poultry, whether for exhibition or educational purposes, shall be accompanied by a declaration or certification from the owner or exhibitor that to the best of his/her knowledge, the poultry entries and source flock are free from any evidence of transmissible disease.

- This certificate or declaration must contain the date of pullorum disease blood testing as well as the name and address of the owner/exhibitor, the name and location of the show, and identification information for each bird to be exhibited.

Exhibit animals must originate from a flock in which a minimum of twenty birds four weeks of age or older were tested serologically negative for avian influenza within sixty days of shipment. The shipment must be accompanied by the test report. Health certificates of Pullorum eradication must be completed and accompany the fowl entries. Pennsylvania flocks must be from home flocks vaccinated for Laryngotracheitis (LT) no more than one year and no less than thirty days before the opening date of the exhibition. Note: The LT vent brush vaccine must never be used. Use a tissue culture LT intraocular administration vaccine only.

After returning from show, all birds that were exhibited should be isolated from the rest indefinitely, or at least until it has been established that the birds are not carriers of disease producing agents.

Exemptions

While the new law is applicable to all agricultural fairs as defined above, the new law is not applicable to some agricultural events, including:

- An event sponsored by an agricultural organization and held not more than two days per year.
- An event authorized by a farmer to permit individuals to view or have contact with the animals a farmer is raising in the course of normal agricultural operation.
- An event performed or authorized in the normal course of operation of an equine boarding, riding, or training exercise by the person who owns the enterprise.

Grumbine To Head Lebanon Valley Expo

On the move, Dennis Grumbine drives in his pickup truck near his Myerstown home this spring.

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Dennis Grumbine, former Pennsylvania Farm Show director, was recently named CEO of the Lebanon Valley Exposition Corporation.

"Mr. Grumbine will be responsible for administering any and all business functions of the corporation," according to Richard Kreider, president. "He brings a wealth of knowledge and expertise to the position."

The cornerstone event at the 72-acre Lebanon Fairgrounds and Expo Center is the Lebanon Area Fair conducted annually the last week of July. A total of 70 events take place at the expo center each year.

Grumbine, Myerstown, has served on the expo's board of directors for decades.

According to Kreider, the board of directors has recognized the need to position the Lebanon Fairgrounds and Expo Center to "grow and prosper as our business interests continue to grow."

Grumbine was terminated from his position as Pennsylvania Farm Show director by the new administration of Gov. Ed Rendell this spring.

Bitler Well-Qualified To Deliver Ag's Perspective To Media

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — The media often gets a bad rap when it comes to reporting on agricultural-related subjects.

Oftimes outlandish claims are not meant to construe the facts. Instead, the statements can be attributed to misunderstanding.

In an effort to better communicate agriculture's message, Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association has recently appointed 15 dairy farmers to fill ag spokesperson roles in designated areas.

Phoebe Bitler is one of the recently appointed ag spokespersons, whose job is to bridge the gap between farm and city perspectives.

She isn't merely a talking head, but has garnered a harvest of knowledge from growing up on a family farm, farming in partnership with her husband, and working in numerous ag-related organizations.

She is a former Berks County dairy princess, a home economist for Penn State extension, Pennsylvania Young Farmer's National Ag Spokesperson, and much more.

As the youngest of five siblings, Phoebe said during her growing up years, she often accompanied her parents to dairy cooperative leadership meetings and to National Holstein Conventions, where her dad served as a delegate.

"I think that influenced me more than anything to farm and to promote the industry," she said of the various opportunities she has taken advantage of as an adult.

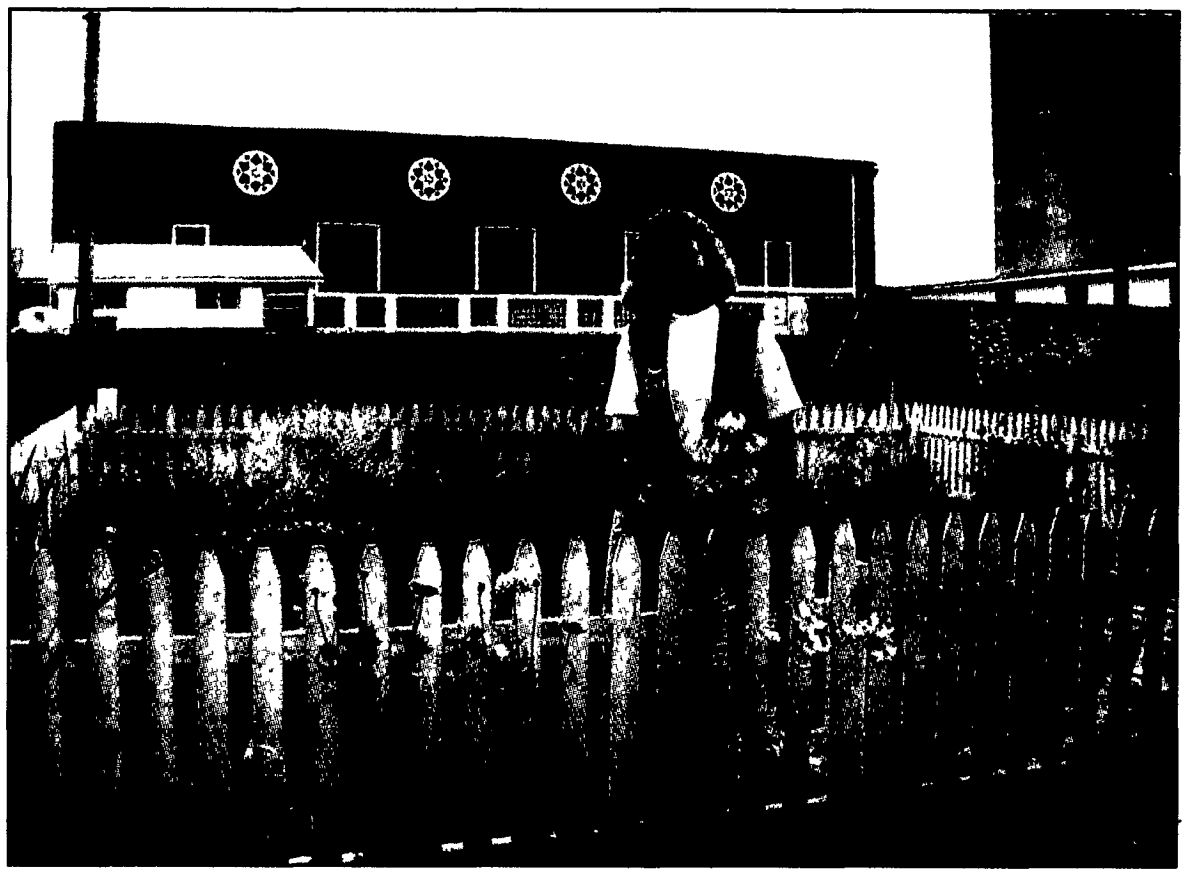
"I considered taking ag sciences in college, but not many females enrolled in that course when I entered," Bitler said. Instead, she was graduated as a home economics major at Del Val College. Subjects studied there continue to intrigue her and have influenced many of her activities such as teaching crafts.

Through 4-H activities, Phoebe met her husband-to-be David Bitler, who grew up on a dairy farm there. After the couple married in 1977, they farmed two years in Southern Lancaster County. Phoebe took her 17 4-H cows and the couple purchased her husband's dad's herd to farm on shares with another farmer.

"It was a good way to get started in farming without having a lot invested in machinery and other overhead," she said.

In 1979, the couple purchased Bitler's childhood farm in partnership with her brother and his wife. The partnership continued until 1986, when health issues forced her brother to sell out. Phoebe and her husband traded some equipment for her brother's share of cattle.

"Milk and genetics make the income," Phoebe said of the decision to keep the herd intact and sell some of the equipment.



Ag spokesperson Phoebe Bitler farms full time, helps her herb garden flourish, and participates in many ag-related organizations.

Phoebe Bitler consults with her husband Dave, who oversees the herd's breeding program, and son Jesse, who repairs the farm's equipment and has his own tractor to do custom farming.

As the ag spokesperson, Phoebe Bitler helps bridge the gap between farm and city. Recently a Philadelphia television station interviewed her on biosecurity issues and the steps dairy farmers take to keep farms safe and secure.

"I like milking cows that are clean and look attractive," she said of her twice daily responsibility. The farm employs several part-time workers to help milk about 105 cows and farm about 400 acres. About 182 acres are part of the Vista Grande farm.

David oversees the breeding program. The Bitler name has become synomous with good breeding stock.

Phoebe said that 94 percent of their bulls are sold for breeding to other farms.

"We don't worry so much about genetics and numbers. We look at production and longevity. It helps to keep a cow a long time," she said of financial advantages.

David also serves as an agent or as "matchmaker" between buyers and sellers for herds. He has a set fee per head, which enables his clients to know exact costs before contracting his services.

Phoebe helps out with the required digital photography, posting Website information and faxing paperwork with clients.

Son Jesse is 19 years old. His interest lies heavily with the equipment end rather than in milking. He recently returned from participating in national competition for diesel technology, where his team placed 12 in national competition. Last year, Jesse was a member of the FFA team that placed third in national competition for tractor restoration.

His mechanical prowness is a huge benefit on the farm for repairing equipment. He also repairs equipment for other farmers. He also purchased equipment to develop a custom farming business and custom raises heifers and also some to sell.

Two years ago the Bitlers faced a choice. Did they want to expand or remain a small family farm?

After crunching numbers and taking an in-depth look at possible outcomes, the Bitlers chose to remain small but do some barn remodeling. In 1999, the Bitlers sold 100 head of heifers — the prime of their herd ranging between two to five years of age — and 14 dairy bulls.

This herd reduction enabled them to move the remaining 39 cows to one side of the barn while all-new steel beams and posts were installed. They removed the concrete floors, increased the length of stalls on one side of the barn, and installed a new water system and water beds for cow comfort. The stalls were reduced three inches in width to prevent the cows from turning sideways. This change gained space for two new stalls. When half the barn was finished, the herd was moved into the new part so that the next phase of rennovation could be completed.

This method enabled them to continue milking the herd during the complete rennovation phase.

This change enables tractor and trailers to back in the barn and unload grain with ease.

"We are content not to be big. We haven't regretted it," Phoebe said. "Expanding would have required a whole new employee management program, which I did not want to be saddled with. I do not enjoy managing employees," she said.

Dwindling milk prices this past year have also confirmed their decision not to expand.

"Last year was the tightest (financial) year we ever had in farming. It has caused us to diversify more," Phoebe said.

She thinks it is important for children to have diversified opportunities that they alone are responsible for, which is why Jesse is pursuing the custom farming route.

One of the extracurricular activities Phoebe oversees is farm tours. She plans yearly excursions of 7-8 days.

This year she has planned a farm-focused trip to New England from Sept. 28-Oct. 4. The bus capacity for 49 people was quickly filled. Many of the participants accompany the Bitlers annually. She attempts to keep off the beaten path of tourist traps and find fascinating places to visit, not necessarily dairy but farm related with a mix of culture activities.

"Farm people don't know how to take a vacation," Bitler said of their notorious work ethic. They like to participate in these bus tours because the participants share similiar interests. Not all the participants are farmers, but generally have a farm background. Participants range in ages. Some take their whole family.

The trips require some extensive scouting out ahead of time. Phoebe and her husband like to visit the planned spot a year in advance at the same time as the tour so they can judge traffic, weather, and other things. These are working vacations as they sleuth out prospective leads and discard those which they believe will lack appeal to their clients.

It's an opportunity for the Bitlers to travel, but it is no vacation managing a busload of people and the logistics required.

Bitler also serves on the Berks County Conservancy board, is an ag board member for First Union Wachovia Bank, and teaches a Sunday school class.

Of her spokesperson's responsibilities, Phoebe said that her experience in 1986 as the National Ag Spokesperson of the Year provided experience in learning to think before talking, and to always speak truth.

Media crisis communications training and in-depth information are provided to help spokespersons respond positively in reinforcing ag facts.

According to Laura England, Mid-Atlantic's director of communications, Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association appointed 15 dairy farmers to serves a spokespersons in selected areas of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

In addition to providing continued training, Mid-Atlantic staff will work to secure more interviews for its spokespersons. Among the topics pitched to the media were the new 3-A-Day program and June Dairy Month.

The idea for appointing ag spokespeople was started by Dairy Mangement Inc. and supported by state and regional dairy promotion groups.

For more information about Mid-Atlantic's Dairy Farmer Spokesperson Network, contact Laura England at (215) 627-8800, ext. 15.

At Vista Grande farm, bull and heifer calves are raised as breeding stock.

Get a game plan.

Want to go into business, take a trip, remodel your house? Want to buy a car, plant a garden, build an investment account? Better have a game plan.

That's the first line of advice we usually get, regardless of our end goal. For a garden or remodeling your house, at least if you're doing the job yourself, maybe your plan is tucked away in your head. But if you need to borrow money, work with consultants, make arrangements for services, better get the plan on paper.

Corporations have strategic, long-range plans; so do single business operators, though the plans are perhaps less formal. Sports teams live and die by their game plans. Parents plan for their childrens education, health care, career training.

It only takes one trip to the supermarket without a specific list to remind me of the value of a paper plan. Without that list, we'll have plenty of food and supplies, except for that key item that was the purpose of the trip to begin with.

So, too, farmers, need a game plan. Livestock breeders better their odds at the genetics game with mating plans, aim at calving times, calculate expansion and contraction of herd or flock numbers. Crop plans are initiated months ahead, as seed is ordered, lime and fertilizer spread, prices contracted perhaps. Grains, like barley, wheat, oats, are mostly already growing by late fall, planned and planted many months before their mid-summer harvest.

Most games for which we plan, or play, have fairly dependable rules and procedures.

The first and foremost rule of the farming game is that anything that can throw a monkey wrench into your plan, will. And, there'll be a few gliches deemed impossible — until they happen.

Of course, the biggest wrench in the gears is Mother Nature herself, specializing in throwing down challenges of drought and deluge, blasting blizzards, wicked winds, unseasonal cold fronts, spa-like humidity and heat straight from the netherworld. So farmers huddle and revisit their summer planting and harvest plans, discarding, altering and inventing tactics to get to game plan goal.

To at least break even.

Which is why scores of bags of seed corn are on their way back to suppliers, seed that farmers were never able to put into the ground during the prolonged weeks of swamp season. Which is why ground planted to barley or wheat, and originally planned to be double-cropped with soybeans, may instead be double-cropped to weeds, the one thing sure to thrive and mature at this late stage of the summer planting game.

It's why hay that was to be baled was instead chopped, ahead of the rain, and hay that was to be chopped was blown back into fields after it rotted. It's why rye grass that was supposed to be a green forage crop instead matured to a grain crop to be combined. And, it's why bags of sudan grass seed, a fast-growing forage crop often used to replace a forage crop Mother Nature messed with, are almost as scarce as $2 bills.

While farmers juggle and fine tune their crop game plans this season, trying to keep a step ahead of the rules changes, most of us gardeners have battled the same forces.

After planting hills of cantaloupes for about the third time, I've finally resigned myself to supermarket melons. After losing one whole variety of tomato plants to bunnies and bugs (mostly bunnies), some side-shoots of the best thriving ones have been rooted as substitutes. We may go for a late string bean planting, because the first two attempts have been disappointing; or, frozen ones are reasonably priced — and ready to use.

And after yanking out scores of self-seeded morning glory vines from the flower beds, it finally occurred to me that the sturdy volunteers could fill the holes poked in my garden game plan. A few strategically placed supports will enable them to climb away, filling the voids left by annuals either drowned or eaten alive by slugs during swamp season.

Mother Nature is a formidable game plan opponent. To play her game, one needs to train for marathons, fake the pass, run on a possible pop foul, putt carefully, spike the ball and sprint for the goal post with all you're worth and hope you can sidestep the groundhog hole, which she'll throw somewhere into the final lap.

Family Camping

Looking for some fun family times where bugs and dirt are always included? Consider a camping trip. Whether you take a tent or a trailer, there are many nearby spots to choose from where your family can set up housekeeping for a day, a week, or even longer.

Why would you want to spend time planning and packing to leave the comforts of home to sleep near the ground and share a bathhouse with strangers?

It's because of the magic moments that can happen when you are spending time with your children in nature, of course!

Time spent camping allows families to slow down, leave televisions, telephones, and computers behind and focus on one another. Children's imaginations can open up and take on a whole new dimension when they leave the toys of home behind and use the resources around them to create their fun.

Camping provides a great stage for creating family legends and folklore that can be shared for generations to come. What better way to record these future memories than with a camping journal. Journals can be kept by individual family members or by the family collectively. Along with narratives of family exploits, your journal can include postcards, photographs, drawings, or even treasures found on outings.

Campgrounds come with all sorts of amenities and price tags. State parks are a great, affordable resource for campers. Each has some unique aspects that you will want to explore. What a great way to get to know your own state! Camping close to home can make the experience even more enjoyable for young children as they don't have to sit for hours in a car. Camping is also a great way for your family to form some new friendships with other campers. The skills that children learn from approaching and introducing themselves to other children at campgrounds can be used throughout their lifetimes. They may also find that these new friendships will follow them right into adulthood.

It takes some planning and preparation ahead of time to make your time away run smoothly. I have found it much easier when I keep all of our needed gear close at hand and easy to pack in plastic bins. The only thing we need to add for each trip is our clothing and food.

I also keep a running list while we are camping so I can keep track of those things we forgot or wish we had so that our next trip is even better.

Meals are another area that can be made eaiser with preparation. There are many cookbooks and Websites catering to campers. Including the entire family in meal planning, preparation, and cleanup is a great opportunity for family fun. Keep track of meals that are winners and soon you will be able to create your own family camping cookbook.

If you haven't tried a family camping trip, I encourage you to consider a weekend trip. When the cold winter winds begin to blow, your family will be able to recall the warm summer breezes and sounds of nature from your camping nights. The bugs and dirt won't even be remembered as you dream of your next family get-away to the great outdoors.

Well Preserved

Preserving Food Without Salt

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

One of the advantages of home food preservation is the ability to prepare foods to meet special dietary needs. Many commercially prepared foods are extremely high in sodium content.

While salt in the form of sodium chloride is the most readily identified source of sodium, sodium comes from a variety of other sources. Read the ingredient labels on commercially processed foods and you will find some of these hidden sources of sodium such as monosodium glutamate, sodium nitrate, sodium benzoate, disodiumphosphate, to name just a few.

By canning and freezing your own foods, you may be able to reduce some of these sodium levels.

Most foods can be safely frozen or canned without the addition of salt. Salt is a flavoring and not a preservative except for brined pickles and sauerkraut. Commercial salt substitutes generally are not recommended in canning but can be added prior to serving. They may contain additives that will react with the foods, impart off-flavors or colors, or give brines a cloudy appearance.

The flavor of salt-free vegetables can be improved with other seasonings. Try adding ½ to 1 tablespoon of lemon or orange juice to each pint of carrots, beets, or asparagus.

Green beans and peas get a lift from ¼ teaspoon mace, nutmeg or curry powder per pint. Whole kernel corn is good canned with a few strips of red pepper and ½ teaspoon basil per pint.

Other flavorings substitutes could be black pepper, curry powder, cumin, dill, ginger, coriander, garlic or onion. Use the powdered form of onion or garlic instead of the salt form.

Spices and herbs tend to get strong and bitter when frozen. Season lightly before freezing and then add more seasonings when reheating and serving.

Salt is needed in brined pickles, sauerkraut, and cured and smoked foods because it plays a role in the safe preservation of these foods. Fermented pickles and sauerkraut are made by soaking cucumbers or cabbage in a salt-water brine for at least three weeks. The salt in the brine controls the growth of microorganisms. Too little salt causes undesirable organisms to grow and spoilage results. Too much salt kills the lactic acid bacteria needed to give the fermented pickles and sauerkraut their characteristic flavor as well as preserving them.

Never cut down or eliminate salt in these fermented products. Some sodium reduction can be achieved by rinsing sauerkraut with water before serving it. Avoid salt substitutes in these products because their use in such large amounts can be harmful.

Salt can be eliminated or reduced in fresh-pack pickles. The safety of these pickles depends upon the proportion of vinegar in the product. No-salt pickles should contain at least one part vinegar to one part water and each pint jar of pickles should have at least ¼ cup of vinegar.

Salt-free pickles need extra seasoning to compensate for the missing salt. Peppery-hot, sweet, and sweet-sour pickles taste better as low-salt pickles than do plain salt-free pickles.

If salt is omitted from fresh-pack dill pickles, enhance the flavor with peppers, herbs and garlic instead. Another option might be to add just a small amount of salt to improve the taste. Most commercial salt substitutes are not effective in creating fresh pack pickles with an acceptable taste.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m., call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Rm.1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

A tree-ripened peach brims with juicy flavor and vitamin C. For the best flavor, look for these qualities:

- Bright, fresh look
- Firm to the touch
- Cream to yellow skin color between red areas
- A "peachy" fragrance

Store peaches according to their ripeness. Firm but ripe peaches can be furthered ripened by keeping at room temperature out of direct sunlight.

Ripe peaches should be refrigerated and used with a few days.

Preserve fresh fruit through canning, freezing, or jelly and jam making.

Peaches lend themselves to many different types of recipes. To name a few: breads, beverages, sauces, kabobs, salads, cobblers, ice cream, sorbets, cakes, pies, and many other dishes.

Here's a recipe from the American Egg Board.

CARAMEL PEACH PECAN FRENCH TOAST

1 loaf (12-ounces) Italian bread, about 15-inches long and 4-inches in diameter
8 tablespoons cream cheese
1¾ cups chopped fresh peaches
1 cup caramel ice cream topping, divided
4 eggs
1 cup low-fat milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup pecan halves
Whipped topping, optional

Cut loaf of bread into eight slices, each about 1½-inches thick. Cut almost, but not quite, through each slice to make a deep pocket. Spread 1 tablespoon cream cheese in each pocket.

Combine peach chunks with 2 tablespoons caramel topping.

Divide evenly among pockets. Press to close. In large bowl, beat together eggs, milk, and vanilla until well blended.

Dip both sides of each stuffed slice into egg mixture over and around each slice. Cover and refrigerate 30 minutes. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place pecans on a baking sheet and toast in oven for 4-5 minutes or until crisp; let cool.

Remove stuffed French toast slices to a nonstick baking sheet. Bake 30-35 minutes or until toasted on the surface and lightly browned. Serve with remaining caramel topping toasted pecans, and whipped topping, if desired.

Curiosity Seekers Will Find Monorail, Nostalgia At Upcoming Auction

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Rare and unique items come up for bid at many auctions. But one of the most unusual items for B.J. Jennings to auction is a monorail.

The original five-car monorail and hundreds of other items used at Dutch Wonderland, Lancaster County's amusement park along Route 30, are scheduled to go to the highest bidder at the on-site auction July 28 beginning 9 a.m.

Arcade games, ball crawl, old wooden park signs, benches, tables, restaurant equipment and numerous items to be sold are certain to bring back memories of good times for many people.

Jennings is counting on those memories enticing people to place a bid for a piece of nostalgia.

"There is a Monorail Society whose members travel from place to place to ride monorails," Jennings said.

She is hoping there are some collectors among that group. Whoever wants to put the monorail into action will need to purchase rails elsewhere, because those will not be auctioned.

Jennings specializes in auctioning restaurant equipment, and said that the auction originally was planned to sell Dutch Wonderland's restaurant equipment, which had recently been replaced with new equipment when the park was purchased by Hershey (HERCO). While compiling inventory, more and more items were uncovered.

At first, management considered using items in a museum commemorating the theme park's beginnings. But the idea seemed unattainable, and the auction expanded.

Jennings said that her career into auctioneering was spurred when she met her husband-to-be.

He said, "If we're going to date, you need to learn what I do on weekends."

Attending auctions together grew into a passion for both. "We attended five to six auctions weekly," Jennings said.

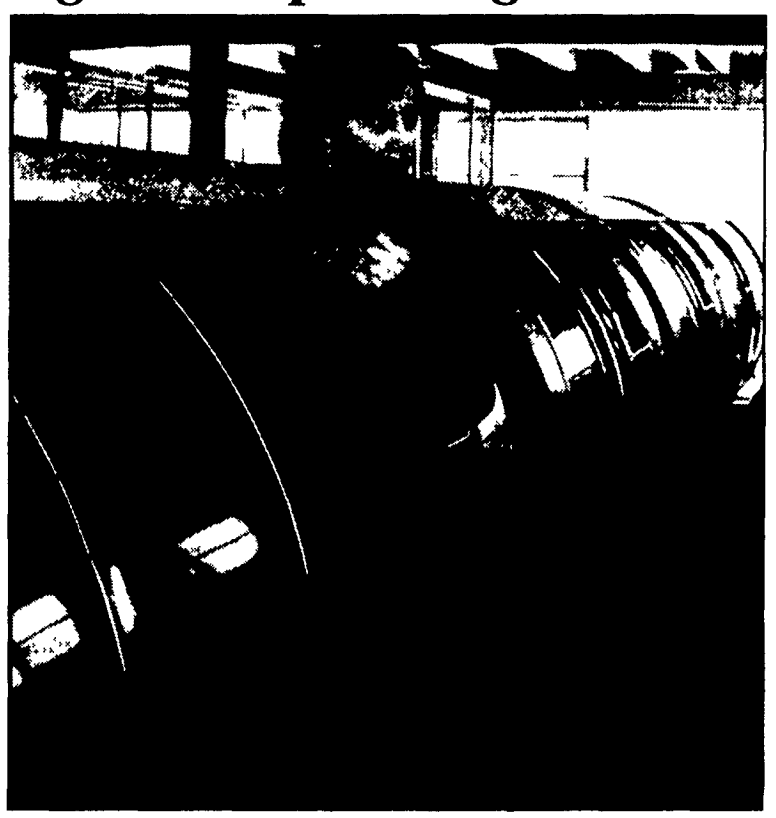
The couple eventually attended auctioneering school, and now work together and independently in the business. Her husband works mainly in auctioneer real estate. She prefers commercial assets.

Bid calling, Jennings said, is entertaining and requires skill honed through practice. She recently competed on the national level at the National Auctioneers Association, San Antonio.

When not conducting an auction, Jennings can usually be found attending auctions. She likes to listen to other auctioneers, and borrows bits and pieces here and there to develop her own style.

"Clear and precise," Jennings said of defining her style of bid calling.

For more information, call Jennings Auction Group, York Haven, at (717) 266-2614.



B.J. Jennings steps from the monorail that is up for bid July 28 at Dutch Wonderland. The five-car monorail, which stretches about 30 yards, was built by Universal Design Ltd. Wildwood, N.J., and installed at Dutch Wonderland in 1966.

Want an Indian chief and his horse? The fiberglass chief and his horse were once a familiar sight at Dutch Wonderland, but are to be sold to make room for park alterations.

QUESTION — A Lycoming reader wants a recipe to make chocolate chip mint cheesecake and other recipes for unusual cheesecake.

QUESTION — L. Kauffman would like a pepper recipe to can sweet peppers that taste like the B&G Sandwich Toppers available at supermarket. She knows it has some oregano in it.

QUESTION — Alice Weaver wants a recipe to make cream cheese.

ANSWER — Marlene Witmer just found out that her son cannot have wheat products, so she is looking for wheat-free recipes, and a source to buy rice flour. Thanks to Mary Hartman, Narvon, for writing that she highly recommends Bette Hagman's book, "The Gluten-Free Gourmet Cooks Fast and Healthy," which contains a wealth of wheat-free recipes. Hartman also writes that rice flour can be found in many bulk food departments of supermarkets such as Shady Maple, East Earl, and in Oriental grocery stores. Hartman purchases rice pasta and other baking needs at an oriental store at the corner of 11th and Elm Streets in Reading.

ANSWER — C. Faus, Hegins, sends this information for Marlene Witmer who inquired about spelt flour. Although spelt flour is available in most health food stores, it can be expensive. You can buy spelt flour freshly ground at Hinkletown (she did not send address or phone number) or call (570) 682-9159. Since the allergy problems their family deals with is protein, spelt flour solves the problem, but for those who have gluten allergies, spelt flour may not work.

Faus writes that spelt flour may be used in most recipes for cakes, cookies, gravy and others that call for flour. However, she found it difficult to roll out pie dough until she found the following method. Now her 8-year-old is delighted to make pie dough.

Pie Dough Using Spelt Flour

3 cups spelt flour
1½-2 sticks soft butter

Combine flour with butter and rub until mixed evenly. Firmly press about ¾ cup crumbs on bottom of pie plate.

Spelt flour does not contain as much gluten as wheat flour, so do not expect a light, fluffy bread. It can be rather crumbly. Faus found it more satisfactory to form into sandwich buns than loaves. Here is the recipe Faus uses to make homemade bread with spelt flour.

Spelt Bread

2½ cups quick oats
1 cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons salt
⅔ cup brown sugar
15 cups spelt flour (approximately)
4 cups water
2 tablespoons yeast
1 cup warm water
2 tablespoons sugar

Soak yeast in one cup warm water with 2 tablespoons sugar. Scald oats, oil, salt, and brown sugar with 2 cups boiling water. Add 2 cups cold water to cool. Stir 7½ cups flour into oatmeal mixture, add yeast. With dough hooks, beat five minutes on high (this strengthens the gluten). Let rise 5-10 minutes.

Stir down. Add remainder of flour and knead. Divide dough into 4 loaves; put in greased bread pans and allow to rise until doubled (one hour). Bake at 350 degrees for about 35 minutes.

ANSWER — Several years ago, Helen Spencer, Hopewell, N.J., had gotten a recipe for Shoo Fly Pie that is served at the Shartlesville Inn. She lent the recipe out and has not gotten it back. "It was the best tasting Shoo Fly Pie and I'd love to be able to make it again," she writes. Thanks to a Landisburg reader who sent a recipe, which she writes is not from Shartlesville Inn but has won first prices. Everyone loves it, she writes.

Shoo-Fly Pie

Crumb topping:
1 cup flour
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons canola oil

Mix together flour, sugar, and oil until crumbly. Save ¼ cup crumbs.

Filling:
1 egg
1 cup molasses
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon baking soda

Mix together egg and molasses. Dissolve baking soda in boiling water. Add to egg and molasses mixture. Add to crumbs. Mix well. Pour into 10-inch pie shell.

Bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees. Sprinkle reserved crumbs on top. Bake additional 30-35 minutes at 350 degrees.

Shoo fly pie should be baked as soon as the filling is mixed toether.

ANSWER — Nona Deputy, York Springs, wanted to know how to preserve citron and where she could get some seeds. Thanks to a reader for sending the following information. Citron seeds can be purchased from R.H. Shumway's Fulfillment Center, 335 S. High St., Randolph, WI 53956. Phone (888) 437-2733.

Citron Melon Preserves

2 pounds citron melon
2 pounds sugar
1 lemon

Cut melon into ½-inch slices, crosswise. Trim off green rind. Discard seeds. Split slices, keeping the inner and outer parts separate. These parts should be preserved separately because the outer portion requires longer cooking. Weigh. Cover with water and boil 25-35 minutes. Drain. Dissolve half the sugar in four cups water. Add citron. Boil 45 minutes. Let stand overnight. Add remaining sugar and sliced lemon. Boil until citron is clear. If syrup is too thick, add boiling water. If syrup is too thin when citron is cooked, remove citron and boil syrup until thickened. The amount of water needed depends upon the amount of citron melon used. Pour boiling hot mixture into jars. Seal immediately.

Note: Citron preserves may be drained and used as a substitute for regular citron. Commercial citron is made from a tree-grown fruit — not a melon.

ANSWER — Eric, Shade Gap, writes, "as a child growing up, I remember my grandmother serving for breakfast what I would call rivels that were sweet in a hot milk-like broth that was poured over bread or bread crumbs and then sprinkled with sugar. Does anyone know what this was and how it was made?" Thanks to Holly Lutz, Jonestown, for writing that this sounds like Dumph Knepp, which her mother often made when she baked bread.

DUMPH KNEPP
Steam Buttons

½ cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg beaten
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons shortening
1¾ cups flour
1 tablespoon dry yeast

Heat milk to scalding (until a skin forms on top) cool to lukewarm. Add yeast and dissolve. Add shortening, salt, sugar, egg, and flour. Place in a greased bowl and let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down and divide into fourths and shape into balls.

Place into a greased 10-inch round cake pan and let rise about 1 to 1½ hours.

Heat in a 12-inch skillet and pour in about ¾-1 cup water. Bring to a boil and place into a skillet on top of a small rack. Use two dinner knives. Let cook on medium heat for 20 minutes. Take skillet off stove and let stand a few minutes before removing lid.

Serve warm with sugar and milk. Swiss cheese was also served with this dish.

Dumph Knepp can be frozen and then reheated in microwave. Holly writes: Of course, we did not have a freezer or microwave at that time, so the family ate the whole thing at one sitting.

ANSWER — Sandy Evans, Berks County, requested a recipe for Red Velvet Cake Roll. Holly Lutz, Jonestown, sent a recipe for Red Velvet Whoopie Pies in which the batter can be adapted to make cupcakes or cake roll. Holly also writes that Duncan Hines sells a red velvet cake mix with a recipe to make a cake roll. Holly writes that one box makes one nice cake roll with batter leftover to make cupcakes or a small cake. She uses two boxes to make two nice-size cake rolls. One to keep and one to give away. Follow directions on box. (Any brand of cake mix will work).

Here's Holly's 'from scratch' recipe.

Red Velvet Whoopie Pies

½ cup shortening
1½ cups granulated sugar
2 eggs
2-ounces red food coloring
2 tablespoons baking cocoa
1½ teaspoons baking soda
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup buttermilk
1 tablespoon vinegar

Make a paste of cocoa and food coloring; set aside.

Cream together shortening, sugar, and eggs. Add cocoa mixture and vanilla. Beat at medium speed for several minutes. Add flour, salt and buttermilk alternately to mixture. Beat several minutes again at medium speed. Fold in baking soda and vinegar. Do not beat.

Drop by tablespoonful onto greased cookie sheets. Bake at 350 degrees for 12-15 minutes or until done. Spread your favorite filling (two different recipes follow) on one, top with a second cookie.

Filling 1:
2 egg whites
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ cup flour
3 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 cup shortening
2½ cups powdered sugar

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add vanilla, flour, milk, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar and mix. Add shortening and remaining powdered sugar, beating until fluffy. Spread between the cookies.

Filling 2:
1 stick butter
1 cup Crisco
2 cups confectioner's sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
6 teaspoons marshmallow fluff.

With electric mixer, beat together butter, Crisco, sugar, and vanilla. Fold in marshmallow fluff. Spread between whoopie pie cakes.

ANSWER — A Lycoming County reader wanted a recipe to make A-1 steak sauce.

A-1 Steak Sauce

½ cup orange juice
½ cup raisins
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup white vinegar
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1 tablespoons grated orange peel
2 tablespoons catsup
2 tablespoons chili sauce

Bring all ingredients to a boil, then boil two minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Allow to cool to lukewarm. Pour mixture into a blender until it is pureed. Pour into a bottle and cap tightly. Refrigerate and use within 90 days.

Consuming Thoughts

Many of us were probably brought up with the potato as the centerpiece of our daily diet. Then, in recent years, some people got the idea that the spud was responsible for the extra bulges and therefore not worth a second glance in the supermarket.

Far too many of us have an unreasonable fear of a perfectly harmless vegetable — the potato. We pass up 100 calories worth of potato for a second helping of steak. A smart consumer learns to enjoy America's favorite vegetable year-round and serves it in versatile dishes at breakfast, lunch, dinner, and snacks.

The potato, of course is a good deal more than starch. Besides being an appetite appeaser, the potato is a low-fat, high-nutrition vegetable that contributes only 80 calories to your dinner plate, a good deal less than most of the foods that might take its place) and 30 percent of your vitamin C requirement. (Another lamb chop or second helping of roast beef could cost you 300 calories or more. Even your salad dressing is probably higher in calories than the potato).

If potatoes are so harmless, why the pound-provoking image? One reason, of course, is that potatoes are seldom seen except in the company of high calorie-high fat companions butter, sour cream, rich sauces, and gravies, shredded cheese, or crumbled bacon. Like a lot of their perfectly good foods, potatoes are the victim of guilt by association.

So, how do you keep a potato virtuous? Become a creative low-calorie cook and strip away the unneeded extra calories in the most popular potato dishes. There are lots of good companions you can provide for everybody's favorite vegetable, sinfully rich-tasting toppings and sauces that only seem fattening.

Here are just a few examples of low-calorie potato companions: Mock sour cream non-dairy flakes, averaging 25 calories a tablespoon. Choose low-fat sour dressing, with only a few calories a tablespoon.

Heart-smart dieters, take note: Most "vegetable oil" sour cream substitutes are made with highly saturated coconut oil and should be avoided by the cholesterol wary.

Plain yogurt only eight calories a tablespoon, with a taste and texture similar to sour cream. Try it mixed with parsley or chives.

Low-fat cottage cheese about 15 calories a tablespoon. Tangy style small curd cottage cheese has a flavor similar to sour cream. "Whipped" cottage cheese is also available.

Homemade "sour cream" prepared by whipping equal parts cottage cheese and buttermilk in your blender has about 10 calories a tablespoon.

Diet margarine has 50 calories a tablespoon instead of 100 for ordinary margarine or butter. (Note that regular margarine and butter have the same caloric count). One teaspoon (16 calories) is enough.

Diet salad dressing pick blue cheese, cream Caesar, French, or any flavor. Most are 10 to 24 calories a tablespoon.

Imitation bacon bits smoky-flavored soy protein chips at only 7 or 8 calories a teaspoon, a fraction of the calories for real bacon.

Low-calorie cream sauce made by stirring 1 cup skim milk gradually into 2 tablespoons flour. Cook over low heat until thickened. Season it with onion flakes, butter-flavored salt, and pinch of cayenne. Nine calories a tablespoon.

Stream MAPS

of Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio, & Maryland/Delaware

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Professor Higbee's® Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

Susquehanna Princess Welcomes June Baby

Friday the 13th was not an unlucky day for Bill and Abbey Jones. This was the day their fifth baby was born, a beautiful little girl Krista Vicky Jones. Susquehanna County Dairy Princess Shana Mack visited the Jones' to recognize a "June is Dairy Month" baby. Shana took them their evening meal and a 'got milk' outfit and bottle for the baby, along with cow erasers and coloring books for her brother and sisters. Krista's brother and sisters are Luke, 8; Mackenzie, 6; Keri, 5; and Peyton, 2.

Beefman Begins Tour At Beef Expo

WESTMORELAND, N.Y. — Beefman, the official mascot of the New York Beef Industry Council (NYBIC) recently visited the Main Beef Expo.

This summer Beefman will visit four states to help spread the good word about beef. Beefman has been maintaining a travel journal to document his visits.

He wrote the following words:

Dear New York Beef Producers,

I had a terrific time in Maine! Those girls I met really like me. A lot of 'em aren't from Maine. They're from the Technical College in Massachusetts and they want to visit them there next winter. How exciting!

Anyway, I never saw so much rain. Why it rained and rained. But I stayed inside because all the people were inside mulling around the cattle and talking, so why should I be out getting wet? My hat's so big it kept me pretty dry except that it seemed to catch the rain falling off the barn roof.

Lots of folks wanted their picture taken with me. I really muscled up for them. I was really handsome. They don't see many cowpokes like me up north, I guess.

That lady from the Maine Beef Council is pretty nice too. She made sure nobody punched me. There were a couple of little guys who challenged me to box with them, but I coyly acted surprised. The little devils!

Hey, guess what! I went to my first cattle auction. Wow, that guy up front talks real fast. He was rattling away and people kept waving at him, so I guess he was doing a good job. Then there were these other guys outside the ring. They were pointing at people and yelling something like "Ya-ep! Ya-ep!" — Does anyone know what that means?

I had fun visiting the Maine-New England Beef Expo. It's a great event. But, I was glad to come home. Traveling makes a cowboy tired.

Sincerely,
Beefman

P.S. If the youngin's want to visit me, they should visit my page on the New York Beef Council Website at www.nybeef.org.

Small Seeds Appear In Seedless Watermelon

COLUMBUS, Ohio — You can rest assured that your sighting of seeds in a seedless watermelon is normal. Although you are seeing little white dots, this case is not enough to label you fruity!

The little white seeds most consumers find when splitting open a watermelon are empty skins from young seeds and are soft and edible. Seedless watermelons are usually less messy to eat than seeded watermelons.

The small, white seeds are the work of scientists who have developed a way to raise a "mule" watermelon — fruit that cannot reproduce. The plants of seedless watermelon are pollinated and produce fruit, but the seeds inside the watermelon are infertile.

Because the seeds are infertile, the melon adapts. The inner, red fruit is often firmer than a seeded watermelon because it does not soften to cushion developing seeds. This usually results in a little longer shelf life.

The seedless watermelon's seeds have three chromosomes, instead of the normal two chromosomes. When the chromosomes in the seeds begin to split and multiply, the extra chromosome throws the process off, leaving the seeds infertile. So, while it looks like a seed, it would not grow if planted.

Scientists achieved the seedless melon this way: The seeds planted for seedless watermelon are modified by the chemical colchicine to have four chromosomes. These seeds are then pollinated by a normal seed with two chromosomes. The resulting fruit has seeds that receive two chromosomes from one parent and one chromosome from another, hence three chromosomes and infertility.

The four-chromosome seeds for seedless watermelon sometimes cost 20 times the price of regular watermelon seed. They also have low germination rates, which is one of the biggest problems for growers. But with the right temperatures and growing conditions, seedless watermelon can be grown.

Dear Twig: My friend calls fireflies "lightning bugs." I just call them fireflies. Who's right?
Both of you are right. Some people call fireflies "fireflies." And some people call fireflies "lightning bugs." Both are common names for insects in the Lampyridae family
"Lampyridae" means "shining ones" in Greek. And shining, of course, is what fireflies do. On hot summer nights, they blink, wink and flash in the darkness. Attracting a mate is why they do it (usually). Special chemicals are how they do it. The chemicals, in the abdomen, combine and make light but almost no heat (unlike a light bulb, ouch!). The process is called bioluminescence.
About 170 firefly species live in North America, most of them no farther west than Kansas. In all, nearly 2,000 firefly species exist on Earth (on every continent except Antarctica!). In firefly-rich Jamaica (50 species), people call them "blinkies." The Japanese word for them is hotaru. A common species in North America, Photinus pyralis, goes by the nickname "Big Dipper."
So you can call them fireflies. Or you can call them lightning bugs. Just don't call them flies or bugs. Lampyrids — like John, Paul, George and Ringo (ask your parents) — are beetles.
Shine until tomorrow,

Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: My grandmother says there were more fireflies when she was young. What do you know about that?
In many places around the world, firefly numbers seem lower. I say "seem," because studies have yet to confirm a decline.
But many people in many places — in Asia and North America, for example — echo what your grandmother says: "There used to be more fireflies."
If it's true — if our glowing beetle friends are fewer and farther between — then scientists think there could be a couple of reasons (if not more).
One reason might be pesticides. Certain pesticides, sprayed to kill pests (like mosquitoes), might be hurting fireflies.
Another reason might be habitat destruction, which has harmed many creatures already. Many fireflies live in wetlands, and many wetlands have been destroyed by development.
A third reason might be light pollution (from cities, streets, buildings, etc.). Bright night lights might make it hard for fireflies to find each other.
Are firefly numbers falling? Research is needed to answer that question.
Keep watching the sky and see what you see.
Luminiferously,
Twig

Red, White, And Beef At July 4 Chef Steak Challenge

Judges taste entries in the Taste of Lancaster Flat Iron Steak Chef Challenge.

MIDDLETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Six Lancaster restaurants celebrated July 4 by participating in an inaugural "Taste Of Lancaster Flat Iron Steak Chef Challenge" during the Great Balloon Fest at the Lancaster Host Resort and Hotel.

The competition exposed restaurant chefs to the flat iron steak, a new cut from the top blade (shoulder) introduced to foodservice and retail channels through muscle profiling research funded by the national beef checkoff program. The flat iron is the second most tender beef cut next to the tenderloin at a more affordable price point for restaurant patrons.

Each chef received two steaks, courtesy of Darrenkamp's grocery store and a mystery box of ingredients. Participants also had access to pantry items donated by SYSCO of Central Pennylsvania and cooking equipment supplied by Harrisburg Area Community College.

The chefs' challenge? Prepare an original entree with the flat iron steaks and mystery box of ingredients within one hour.

Jennifer Engle, Pennsylvania Wine Association executive director; Timothy Harris, Harrisburg Area Community College chef instructor; and two audience members served as contest judges. They scored each entree on flavor and appeal, utilization of mystery box ingredients and chef showmanship.

Judges tallied scores and presented the engraved grand champion platter to Chef Jim of Reflections Restaurant, Leola. Legends Restaurant, Lancaster Host, garnered second place.

Competitors who received steak knives and aprons for their efforts included Texas Roadhouse, Your Place, Carlos & Charlie's, and The Eatery at Granite Run.

The flat iron steak challenge is just one project funded by Pennsylvania's beef, dairy and veal producers through the national beef checkoff.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

It has been a busy week as too many things needed attention at the same time. Besides doing cherries and hull peas, I discovered that the black raspberries were ripe. This year they are quite weedy as no one had time to tend them. But, my husband still has hopes of getting out of the house again when he can walk. People do seem to appreciate it when we share the raspberries.

This year I made some jelly from the berries. And, only someone who has pressed their juice through a cotton bag can appreciate the work that is involved. Although, I do think it is the most flavorful jelly that I can make. It is one kind that I keep for our family to use.

When I made a big apple cake for a picnic, I also took time to make some cherry pies. Through the years I've kept an old tapico box that has a good recipe printed on the side. And, that is what I use when baking pies.

I've planted another long row of green beans as the yellow ones are only now bearing some. Different kinds of squash have been planted beside them but will be quite late if they bear some.

We had a wind and rain storm that blew down some trees. And, I was surprised to see that my long pea fence was blown over too. My son and grandson came and put some new posts in the ground to hold the fence upright. Because of all our rain, the peas grew to be six- and seven-feet tall and the weight was too much for the posts. Some of the peas are not picked as I keep my own seed and so they must dry on the fence.

Regional Fashion Revue Winners To Compete For State Honors

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — It was "Raining Fashion" at last week's Penn State Cooperative Extension Capital Region's Fashion Revue competition conducted in Carlisle.

Twenty-three senior 4-H'ers from seven counties competed for the opportunity to represent the Capital Region at Penn State 4-H Achievement Days in August. The eight winners from the Capital Region will have the opportunity to model with sixty-four other 4-Hers from across the state. This is an exciting event where young people get to practice their communication skills and develop poise during the all day event.

Participants at the Regional Revue were judged on selection of fabric and pattern compatibility, construction techniques, and modeling presentation. The following 4-Hers took top honors and are eligible to attend State Days: Kate Sweigart from Lancaster County; Rachel Siegel from Lebanon County; Sarah Graybill from Lancaster County; Sara Ann Oyler from Adams County; Lindsay Burkart from Lancaster County; Roanna Martin from Lancaster County; Rachel Ranck from Lancaster County; and Kate Martin from Adams County. Should one or more of these 4-Hers be unable to attend State Days the following were selected as alternates: First alternate, Deborah Sweigart from Lancaster County; Second, Sara Cartwright from Dauphin County; Third, Emily Ziegler from Lebanon County; Fourth, Madison Miller from Cumberland County; and Fifth Julie Bogue from Adams County.

Those between the ages of eight and twelve also had the opportunity to practice their modeling skills and gain confidence while interacting with the fashion revue judges. This year, two sets of judges each selected their top five juniors. The job was challenging as thirty-six young people competed for the top 10 positions and the prized royal blue ribbon.

The following are the junior winners: Anna Gilbert from Adams County; Katelyn Miller from Dauphin County; from Franklin County, Quinn Cashell, Marlee Beckner, Madison Wenger and Kenny Beaver; from Lebanon County Marah Light and Brooke Umberger and from Lancaster County Laura McEllhenney; and Kelly King.

The gold ribbon winners include Jena Rutt, Jesica Knitter, Cassie Newcomb, and Shelly Kneebone, all of Northampton County; Kelli Schlegel, Berks Co.; Katie Kauffman, Berks Co.; Kathryn Gillen, Montgomery county; Caitlin Celia and Jamie Celia, Berks Co.; and Stacey Mangold, Lehigh County.

Blue Honor winners included Lianna Sanford, Chester County; Julie Albanese, Northampton County; Ashley Loeb, Bernville; and Jessica Mangold, Lehigh County.

These winners are Erin Zeigler, New Ringgold; Hannah Stabolepszy, Leesport; Mallory Ketterer, Bernville; Christine and Maria Sanford, Chester County; Sarah Vezzetti and Gabrielle Ochoco of Bucks County; and Molly Lichtenwalner of Lehigh County.

At the State Revue, the senior gold ribbon winners will compete with 60 winners from other regions for a place in the state honors group where a panel of professional judges selects 12 finalists. The entrants are judged on garment construction, fit, degree of construction difficulty, appropriateness of garment for the 4-H'er, and modeling ability. By participating in the series of county, regional, and state revues, 4-H textiles science project members have a chance to turn self-consciousness into self-confidence.

Participants learn about wardrobe selection, the importance of good posture, physical fitness and other aspects of grooming.

Gettysburg Quilt Odyssey Showcases Civil War Quilts July 31-Aug.3

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Quilt Odyssey 2003, July 31 through Aug. 3, in Gettysburg, is hosting four colorful exhibits this year.

A special exhibit will be Dear Jane quilts. These are quilts which are "spin offs" from the original 1863 Jane A. Blakely Stickle Civil War quilt. A resident of Vermont, Jane finished the quilt in 1863 during one of the most important times in our nation's history. She must have sensed this as she signed the quilt, "In War Time 1863."

The quilt composed of 225 sampler blocks and ice cream shaped border blocks.

To complement this exhibit, Fran Fitz of Myersville, Md., is curating an exhibit of 15 Civil War Era quilts. These are rare treasures indeed as many quilts made during that period were given to soldiers to be used as bedding, clothing, in lieu of shoes, and in the worst scenario, to cover or wrap casualties of war.

Hours the exhibits and merchants mall will be open, Thursday, July 31 through Saturday, Aug. 2 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, Aug. 3 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is an admission charge. For information on workshops, lectures, directions, and accommodations, contact Quilt Odyssey, 15004 Burnt Mill Road, Shippensburg, PA 17257, (717) 423-5148.

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it. However, if your question requires someone to mail items to you, you must include your address or phone number for publishing.

QUESTION — C. Faus, Hegins, wants to know how to store raw vegetables such as carrots, squash, kohlrabi, and more to store for winter use.

QUESTION — Wayne Urffer, 254 W. Main St., Moorestown, N.J. 08057, is interested in photos, stories, manuals, and other information that show how to convert tractors (homebuilt from cars, trucks, or a combination of various parts and pieces. This practice was common during the Great Depression, because conversion tractors were often built out of necessity by poor farmers who couldn't afford a commercial tractor. Urffer writes that he is prepared to pay a fair price for good, original materials.

QUESTION — Nicolette Wagman, Seven Valleys, is doing research for a book about musical instruments and makers in York County. She wants information and photographs of instruments and their makers from any era. Call her at (717) 428-1856.

QUESTION — A reader wants to know what causes swimmers in a farm pond to become itchy the morning after swimming in the pond. It looks like mosquito bites over their bodies and they are very itchy. Can something be done to the pond to eliminate the problem?

QUESTION — Shirley Schwoerner, Wysox, writes that some time ago she had clipped an answer in this column from Joyce Raubenstine who told how to make creams from aloe vera. The instructions were unclear, and she asks if someone can tell her the exact amount of aloe vera to use. The directions she has are as follows: To prepare a herb ointment or salve, crush the leaves of the aloe vera and mix with four parts melted fat (lard or shortening) and one part dry white wine. Heat gently for 20 minutes. Cool slightly and strain.

Shirley writes that her husband's chronic back problem was aggravated during haymaking. She rubbed aloe vera leaves on his back, and it helped instantly. He was amazed. It was a sloppy procedure, so they'd like to make the salve if possible.

Shirley adds a bit of humor by writing that she can't boil water without a 3x5 card, "so you can see my problem with the aloe vera (instructions)."

QUESTION — Kenneth Wirtz, White Hall, Md., is having trouble finding replacement parts for his electric three-point hitch that is on a 10HP Sears garden tractor purchased in 1977. The parts are no longer available through Sears. The item is Model number 917.253130 electric 3-point hitch. Wirtz would appreciate hearing from someone who no longer uses the part. He doesn't need the complete hitch, just the power assist lift. He is willing to pay a fair price for the item. Call him at (410) 329-2175.

QUESTION — Sharon Heller writes that they have 75 acres in Perry County. About half of the acreage is mowed by a neighbor who sells the ⅓ ton mixed hay rolls for his own profit. She wants to know how to find an average rental for the acreage. What is the best way to advertise the available acreage?

QUESTION — Marion Capp wants to know the name and address of the artist who paints scenery on the sides of barns.

QUESTION — Lynn Rossi, Lititz Borough, has a young groundhog living beneath a large rock in her front yard. She worries about the safety of her four-pound Yorkie. How can she get the groundhog to leave her property in her residential area?

QUESTION — A reader wants to know of a person interested in butchering large amounts of ducks weekly. Easy to learn how to do it and good income provided, reader promises. Call (845) 658-3243.

QUESTION — Cindy Eshleman, R.3, Box 7957, Jonestown, PA 17038, wants to know what day of the week the Selingsgrove Horse Sale is conducted. Also, she asks, if a sequel was written to "Gone With the Wind" and "Scarlett"? If so, what is the title of the book? Eshleman also wants the May 2003 issue of "Paper Horse." She is willing to pay postage.

QUESTION — A. M. Hurst, 135 Hurst Rd., Ephrata, PA 17522, is searching for a Wenger Family History book dated 1727-1959, and with a black cover.

QUESTION — Sandra Smith, Spring Mills, would like a copy of instructions for making a daisy afghan. The pattern she had and lost was at least 20 years old. She needs to know how to stitch the daises together.

QUESTION — Mike White, Bernville, writes that the last few years, he has a problem with black birds (grackels) after he plants field corn. When the corn first comes up until it is two to three weeks old, the birds either pull out the small plants or tear them off. This year, he had to replant a three-acre field because of the destruction the birds caused. No one else in the area seems to have a problem, but White has witnessed the birds digging and pulling out the corn. It seems the area is hardest hit on the hills where the morning sun first shines. He has tried scarecrows, which only works in a 20-feet area around the scarecrow. Any help or suggestions will be appreciated.

QUESTION — The Beilers of 2290 Quarry Rd., Jersey Shore, PA 17740, need to know where to find a cover for a two-quart stainless steel saucepan made by Thermo-Sentinel. The lid may be used. The Beilers also need a cover for a one quart 9-inch frypan made by Flavor Seal.

QUESTION — Harriet Newlin, 1287 Ridge Rd., Grantville, PA 17028, wants names and addresses of Amish families who serve meals in their homes.

QUESTION — Donald Casner, 155 Casner Lane, Lewistown, PA 17044, would like to know where to find a a type of sweet corn cutter that is turned like a crank. He saw it publicized on R7D-TV.

QUESTION — Arlene Deimler is looking for small, stuffed goats or a pattern for making them. Write to her at 29 Edison Rd., Palmyra, PA 17078, or call (717) 838-9094.

QUESTION — A reader with a growing family is interested in buying good, used 2-quart jars, regular or widemouth. Please call (717) 445-4149.

QUESTION — LaKee Christman, Greencastle, wants to know if there are any places that buy and slaughter tame rabbits in the Franklin County area.

QUESTION — Marie Hixson, Crystal Spring, wants to know how to grow wild rice. They live on a farm with some wet areas that she believes would be suitable for growing rice. Anyone know where she can find information?

QUESTION — Warren Glidewell, Bloomsburg, wants to know where to find Flemish giant rabbits in a fawn color.

QUESTION — To the reader who wants to buy a used, size 6 cast iron skillet in good condition. You must include an address or phone number so the person who has it can contact you.

QUESTION — Eugene Maute, 327 Asbury Ave., Elkins Park, PA 19027 wants to know who sells thick, clear, flexible plastic sheeting like that used to make seat covers. Maute wants to buy several yards.

QUESTION — C. Gutshall, Carlisle, is looking for proper cleaning instructions for printed cotton seed sacks made in the 1940s. She also would like a Web site address that offers information on older cotton and burlap feed sacks.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know what to use to counteract blight on red beets. The leaves look like little trails. When the skin of the leaf is lifted, little maggots are in between. The leaves get brown and die. Thanks to Harriett Tinker for writing that the problem appears to be a leafminer. The adult insect is usually some kind of little fly that lays eggs on the underside of the leaf. The maggots hatch out and burrow into the leaf causing tunnels and subsequently destroying the leaf. Leafminers are difficult to control because once they are in the leaf, insecticide will not kill them. One can try to grow beets under a row cover to eliminate the fly's being able to lay eggs on the leaves, or you could try spraying with Malathion before the insects get into the leaves. Of course, that requires close monitoring of the plants to determine when to spray.

ANSWER — Al Lenkiewicz, Hamburg, is looking for information on a device that attaches to the vehicle exhaust and to a garden hose used to kill ground hogs in their burrows. Thanks to Wayne Urffer, Moorestown, N.J., for taking the time to write that the Pennsylvania Game Commission expressly forbids the use of automobile exhaust to hunt groundhogs. He does remember his grandfather using black plastic pipe to kill groundhogs. Since this method is no longer an option, perhaps someone can send in a tip for discouraging groundhog habitation on property.

Day Of Vines And Roses At Hershey Gardens

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Hershey Gardens' "A Day of Vines and Roses"— a rose festival — will be conducted on Saturday, July 26, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and will include family activities, tours, rose demonstrations, and music.

Don Myers of the Penn Jersey District of the American Rose Society will be the guest speaker at two presentations: "Care Free Roses for the Busy Gardener" at 11:30 and "Rose Propagation and Care" at 1 p.m. Tours of Hershey Gardens will be conducted at 10:30 and 12:30 and some participating organizations will be selling artisan items.

Kids can let their imaginations soar at the River-Banker's Picnic area of The Children's Garden with storytelling by Miss Elizabeth Lady Beetle. They can also make their very own rose-scented soap on the Shaded Classroom Terrace, participate in an interactive scavenger hunt, and enjoy a special coloring project all designed to teach children about roses in a fun and creative way.

Music and entertainment by the Hershey Area Playhouse at 10:30 a.m., children's program performer Jim Rule at 11:15 a.m., the Sweet Adelaides Express Quartet at noon, and a flute ensemble at 1 p.m., will round out the day.

Whitcraft said all activities are included in general Hershey Gardens admission: $7 adults, $6.50 seniors 62+, and $4 ages 3-15. Members and children under 3 are admitted free.

Operating Committee Reviews Priorities For Checkoff Funding

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — The Beef Promotion Operating Committee recently heard a report about how cattle producers throughout the country want their beef checkoff dollars invested during the coming year.

The report is part of an inclusive process than began in December 2002, when the Beef Checkoff Program engaged an independent market-research firm to survey more than 1,200 producers nationwide about several topics, including how they believe checkoff dollars should be spent.

Volunteer members of joint industry advisory committees then met at the annual cattle industry convention in January to identify their program priorities, which were, in fact, extremely similar to those voiced by their fellow producers via the survey.

The report of those priorities to the Operating Committee served as the first step in its development of a budget recommendation for checkoff programs to be conducted in fiscal 2004.

"Producers repeatedly told us that they want us spending their checkoff dollars on programs that relate to information and research about nutrition and beef safety issues," said Cattlemen's Beef Board Chairman Andy Tucker, who also chairs the Operating Committee.

"They also want to make sure that we continue our efforts in the area of new-product development and other promotional efforts that aim to continue the upward trend in beef demand that began in 1998.

"It's very important that we have this grassroots input to kick off our annual budget process," Tucker continued. "And as committees and prospective contractors of checkoff dollars prepare proposals for next year's programs during the next several months, it will be important that they keep these producer priorities in mind."

The Operating Committee will meet again in June 2003 to develop a budget recommendation to the Beef Board for fiscal 2004, subject to USDA approval.

Advisory committees and subcommittees then meet again in July to prepare recommendations for specific program proposals, which then are considered by the Operating Committee and USDA in September, before the Oct. 1 beginning of the fiscal year.

In other action this week, the Operating Committee rejected a proposal from the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) to redirect beef checkoff funds previously approved for implementation expenses associated with beef promotion efforts in South Korea and Japan to pay instead for expansion of those same programs.

The committee voted 11-6 in favor of the proposal, with three members absent, thus falling one vote short of the required two-thirds majority for a vote by the committee to pass.

American Gelbvieh Association Seeks SmartCross Calves For Tag Program

WESTMINSTER, Colo. — The American Gelbvieh Association is aggressively seeking calves that qualify for its new tagging program. The AGA's SmartBuy program works to identify and promote calves with the profitable blend of Gelbvieh and Angus genetics (SmartCross calves).

SmartCross calves must be sired by a registered Gelbvieh, Balancer or Gelbvieh-Angus hybrid bull and out of an Angus-based cow (red or black).

The calves must be vaccinated using either the VAC 34 or VAC 45 program and producers must follow Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) guidelines.

If a producer has calves that qualify for the SmartCross tag program, he or she should call Dennis Fennewald at the AGA office, (303) 465-2333, to order SmartCross tags and learn more about the program.

SmartBuy provides a cash incentive to the buyers of SmartCross-tagged calves. For a limited time, the American Gelbvieh Association will directly pay buyers $2 per head for every SmartCross-tagged calf purchased.

Buyers simply need to fax or mail the AGA the bill of sale including the seller's name, the weight, sex and number of head of cattle, price, deliver date, and contact information of the feeder (if different from the buyer), along with the SmartCross tag numbers.

SmartBuy and the SmartCross tag program provide buyers with source-verified, pre-conditioned calves, while adding value to SmartCross calves with Gelbvieh and Angus genetics.

For more information on the SmartBuy program, visit the AGA WebSite at www.gelbvieh.org www.gelbvieh.org or call Dennis Fennewald at the AGA office, (303) 465-2333.

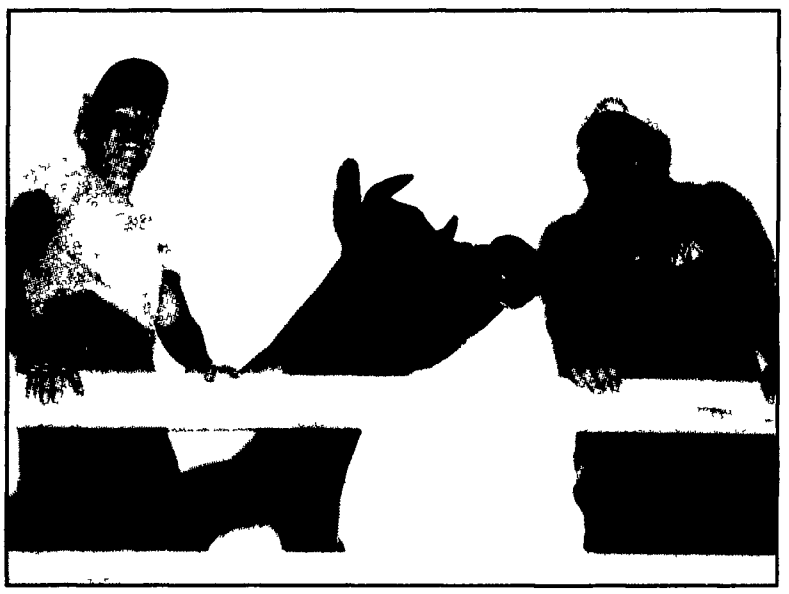
The scoop display at the Udder Choice shows the quest to dip ice cream with ease.



Owners Bill and Alice Kay Ulrich stand in the loft of the barn-like structure and overlook their newly constructed 5,000 square-foot restaurant, The Udder Choice, 1812 W. Main St., Ephrata.

Inside Scoop On Ice Cream Dippers

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — When Dolley Madison, wife of President James Madison, served ice cream at the White House, the frozen treat's popularity soared. But dipping mounds of America's favorite frozen treat is no easy feat — and one that creates a constant flux of new, improved appliances to scoop with ease.

The quest has produced an amazing array of styles, dubbed "ice cream dippers" or "scoops." Collectors vie to own the most unusual, the oldest, and the most extensive collection.

There is even an organization for ice cream collectibles called The Ice Screamers, who specialize in collecting all sorts of ice cream parlor and soda fountain memorabilia.

The Udder Choice, 1812 W. Main St., Ephrata, offers more than scrumptious ice cream. The restaurant displays an amazing array of ice cream-related memorabilia, from vintage signs to hundreds of ice cream dippers.

The dippers are displayed throughout the barn-like structure. Some are attached to wooden beams and posts, but the most valuable dippers are kept inside a glass-enclosed case. Each of the dippers is neatly labeled with the approximate year it was made.

According to Jay Mark, who maintains a Website on ice cream dippers, the first patent for a mechanical ice cream scoop was awarded in 1878 to William Clewell, Reading. More than 250 patents followed for devices to dish a measured amount of ice cream before World War II.

Most of the 19th century scoops were conical, with an inside blade that turned to scrape the frozen treat from the walls of the bowl.

Scoops came in specialty shapes such as a flat, rectangular shape to make an ice cream sandwich; heartshapes; and later a ball shape to fill an ice cream cone.

Raymond Gilchrist began manufacturing dippers about 1907. His company grew to become the largest makers of scoops. The Gilchirst No. 33 Pyramid Disher was patented in 1910 and was designed to serve ice cream in a fancy shape on a plate.

This heart-shaped scoop is one of the most valuable collector's item.

The nickel-over-brass IcyPi disher was created by James Denaro, an ice cream manufacture. In the mid-1920s, he began making a three-sided wafer "box" to hold a square of ice cream for his novel ice cream sandwich.

Udder Choice owners Bill and Alice Kay Ulrich say that their collection has been amassed mostly by Bill, frequently through e-Bay auctions.

Ulrich also said individual dippers are for sale — for a price, of course.

The most valuable dipper in his collection, according to Ulrich, isn't the oldest but a 1925 heart-shaped dipper made by Manos Novelty Company.

"Only 500 were made. I saw a similar one sell for thosands," Ulrich said.

But those prices are rare. According to Marks' Website, most dippers range in value from $25 to $200.

To learn more about ice cream dippers, check out the book, "Ice Cream Dippers," published by Wayne Smith in 1986. He offers an intriguing illustrated history of these unique appliances. Smith is considered to be a national expert on dippers.

The Website www.icecreamers.com includes information about joining the Ice Screamers, a leading organization for ice cream collectibles. The Ice Screamers conduct annual conventions, and this year's event is scheduled Sept.11-13 at the Best Western Eden Resort Inn, Lancaster.

Mystery Instrument Identified

Tom Aven recognized this mysterious instrument pictured in the July 5th issue on page B17. Aven, who is from Bristol, Va., said that when he was five and six years old, he remembers going with his family to a Montgomery Ward store in Tenn. The store's hardware department had an instrument just like the one pictured. On the counter were different sizes of wire. This instrument was used to wrap the wire a customer ordered. The wire threaded through the center of the counter, and was handcranked to wrap around the extended arms. A small thumbscrew in the back was tightened to hold the wire in position. When the right amount of wire was wrapped, the screw was loosened, and the fan collapsed to enable the clerk to remove the section of wire and tie it together neatly for the customer. Aven said the photo brought back a good memory of playing with the instrument while waiting on his parents.

Many Types Of Figural Candy Containers

Old figural candy containers are seriously collected these days.

Once they were a flea market and garage sale staple. Not now with prices for rare, early examples selling at auction for more than $1,500. However, there are still opportunities for beginning collectors selling for $200 or less.

Figural candy containers had a humble beginning as souvenirs for the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876. They were small glass bottles in the form of Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell. By the late 19th century they were sold to travelers, again as souvenirs. Shortly thereafter they became an important advertising tool.

Hotels offered them in the form of clocks or suitcases with the name of the hotel either painted or embossed on the front A hat-shaped container was used by political candidates .

When the automatic bottle-blowing machine came into use around the 1930s, hundreds of shapes were mass-produced . The horns, rabbits and trains were geared to the children's market. It is these that are still available to collectors.

Most were produced in colorless glass by the Victory Glass Company (1919-1930 Jeannette, Pa.)

One of the most popular, of their 65 different forms was a rabbit sitting on haunches, with gilt trim on upper part: green paint near the bottom.

Glass containers not only came in clear glass, but milk, amber, blue and red colors. Some, like the mantle clock container, first made in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio, 1908-1912, was pressed milk glass and gilded, 3½-inches high.

By the late 1920s radio and cartoon characters were popular figural candy containers.

The Amos 'n Andy in a taxi cab container, made by the hundreds is a rarity that could cost more than $900 in a shop. The characters and wheels are painted.

Clear glass containers in the forms of trains, planes, cars and even a hearse, can still sell at auction for $200-$300. However, when extensively painted they sell for $600 and up.

There are even entire village buildings to collect. They have tin-lithographed exteriors for $100 a building, and up.

To appeal to little girls the "Flossie Fisher" comic was made as doll furniture size of colorful, lithographed tin. An auction price just for the 3¾-inch bed could bring $1,000.

CLUES: Rarity and condition, as well as novelty determine the price.

Surprisingly enough there are still some of those 1876, Philadelphia Centennial, liberty bell containers around. They can sell at auction for $100 each. An Independence Hall, California 1876 container could fetch $150 at auction.

Tops were screw-on tin. Those made to be penny banks had slotted openings.

Reproductions of the most popular pieces have been made. In the 1940s, 1950s the gilt rabbit was reproduced by the Victory Glass company. It will be marked "Victory Glass Inc." In 1973 the Westmoreland Glass Co. made reproductions of their clock container, but in colored glass.

The end of the glass candy container came in the mid-1960s, when they were replaced by plastic.

Bottle auctions and internet bottle collectors sales are good places to look.

Collectibles To Keep Collectors Occupied

CHICAGO, Ill. — At one time or another, almost every home throughout America has had, or still has, pieces marked or stamped Made In Occupied Japan, which was produced in great quantity.

Collectors search for such items at flea markets, garage sales, resale shops, house sales, and other such places where old stuff is offered. Such pieces were made in Japan for export to the United States during the period of American Occupation following World War II, and were mass produced somewhere between 1945 and 1952 (the occupation lasted 6½ years) and can be recognized by their "Made in Occupied Japan", or "Occupied Japan" marks which identifies them as O.J. pieces dating from that time.

O.J. items were made of porcelain, pottery, tin, stamped and plated metal, paper, glass, wood, celluloid, papier-mache, and from other materials some of which were beautifully hand-decorated or painted. They are interesting to collect because of their historical significance and particular (or peculiar) type of charm. Aside from the numerous O.J. novelties that were produced, collectors can find figurines of people, animals, and children along with toys, dolls, cigarette lighters, ashtrays, clocks, watches, lamps, desk and sewing paraphernalia, salt and pepper shakers, perfume bottles, and a zillion other things ranging from canisters to Christmas ornaments made for the American market.

Although most of the pieces sold for low prices being cheaply made, other pieces such as exquisite lacquerware, full sets and services of dinnerware, and many other items were of fine workmanship too, which included more expensively made pieces crafted to imitate Wedgwood, English Staffordshire, Irish Belleek, Majolica, etc. However, such O.J. copycats (which are in a collectible category of their own) can never be compared to the finely made, and far more expensive pieces of better quality that were produced in England, Germany, France, Austria, and other countries known for their distinctive porcelain and pottery. But O.J. ware was far less expensive, and therefore found its way into almost every American home simply because everyone could afford it.

Especially desirable are O.J. figurines depicting people of various types (including Colonial couples, German musicians, Scandinavian fishermen, Italian organ grinders, Dutch children, Siamese dancers, Oriental characters plus people of other races and regions, as well as little elves, imps, and angels along with little pixies, beautiful ballerinas, and a huge assortment of romantic and religious figures and everything else imaginable ranging from mugs to jugs to rugs.

The most important thing that O.J. collectors are concerned with is the mark that such pieces must have to identify them. Authentic O.J. pieces must be either stamped, printed, embossed, impressed, or have a paper or cloth label which says "Made In Occupied Japan" or "Occupied Japan" which is most important. However, sometimes the mark on an O.J. piece may be hard to spot, and therefore when O.J. hunting, it's wise to take along a magnifying glass to examine pieces at all angles for "hidden" O.J. marks that often go unnoticed.

New Fertilizer Coulter Recently Introduced By Great Plains Mfg.

SALINA, Kan. — Great Plains Mfg. Inc. recently introduced an all-new fertilizer coulter to add to its line of precision planting components and attachments. The Vantage III fertilizer coulter uses a specially designed "foot" to apply liquid starter fertilizer under the ground.

Research shows that starter fertilizer will increase corn yields on average of 7 to 10 bushel per acre. If conditions are right and placement is more precise, yields can be increased by as much as 25 to 30 bushel!

Rick Hanson, marketing manager for Great Plains Mfg. Inc. said "The trick — get optimum placement with your starter. The industry standard has been 2 inches over and 2 inches down (2×2). In furrow placement can 'burn' and reduce stand counts and yields. The 2"×2" method is safe, but our research shows it is too far away for quick response. Both of these problems are solved with Vantage III.

Vantage III puts the starter ⅛-inch to ¼-inch below and ½-inch on both sides of the seed. You not only get optimum fertilizer placement, it also vastly improves your seedbed conditions as well. Vantage III lifts the soil slightly as it goes through the soil to create a 'tilthy' seed zone environment."

New Report Covers Benefits Of Precision Agriculture

ATLANTA, Ga. — A new field report has just been released that covers the big picture and benefits growers are achieving by using the tools of Precision Agriculture.

Titled "Precision Agriculture, Today and Tomorrow," the 8-page report also goes in-depth on a North Dakota multi-crop farm operation showing step-by-step details of how a producer manages his acres for wider profit margins with this technology.

"Precision Agriculture is moving from a specialty area to a maintream management practice," said Jerry Schmitt, general marketing manager for FIELDSTAR, with the AGCO Corporation. "Growers have been gathering more detailed information on their fields, analyzing their maps and working on advanced techniques like variable rate applications of fertilizers and other crop inputs," he said. "Plus, they have more accurate overall records of the farming operation."

"This report captures some of this and shows in-depth how one producer does it successfully on a number of crops," said Schmitt.

The report includes field maps, satellite images, and other specific details of the Carson Farms operation in St. Thomas, N.D. Owner/operator Pete Carson notes that his Precision Agriculture program has been built around the Fieldstar office software installed on his desktop computer and helps him reduce crop inputs, especially nitrogen fertilizer, as well as adjust other variables to increase profit margins.

To get a copy of "Precision Agriculture, Today and Tomorrow," call (800) 767-3221, visit www.agcocorp.com and select North America and Request Literature, or visit a local AGCO farm equipment dealer in your area.

Chester Co. Accepting Farm Preservation Applications

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Farm owners interested in preserving their farm may sell an agricultural conservation easement, otherwise known as development rights, to the County of Chester and/or Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The purpose of the Agricultural Conservation Easement Program is to preserve viable agricultural lands in Chester County.

The Chester County Agricultural Conservation Easement Program is a voluntary program that financially compensates farm owners for placing a perpetual agricultural conservation easement on their land. The easement allows the farmer to continue farming, but insures that the land will never be developed.

The Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation Board has 168 farms totaling 16,600 acres under agricultural conservation easement.

The Commonwealth-County program is open to all Chester County landowners with farms of 50 acres or more located within an Agricultural Security Area. (Smaller farms of 10 acres or more, are permitted to apply, if they are adjacent to farms already under easement.) Farms applying to the program will be ranked based on soil quality and other factors that are addressed in the information you may request.

Contact the Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation office at (610) 344-6285, or 601 Westtown Road, GSC, Suite 270, P.O. Box 2747, West Chester, PA 19380 for application and program guidelines. The deadline for applications is September 1.

AHIR Program To Include Younger Calves

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The American Angus Association has made enhancements to the Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) program for weaning weights by expanding the age window to now include calves as young as 120 days, while also adopting a new formula for adjusting 205-day weights.

The change will benefit producers moving to earlier weaning programs and was effective on June 8.

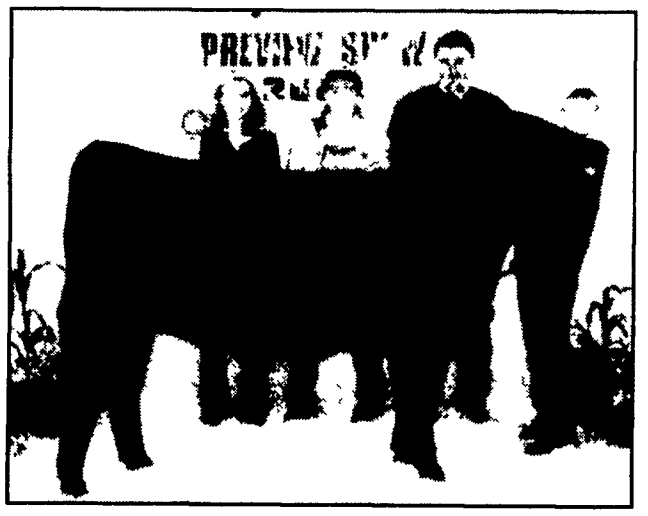
For genetic evaluation and contemporary group ratios, weaning weights are standardized to a calf age of 205 days and a mature dam equivalent.

Previously, only weaning weights from a range of 160 to 280 days were adjusted to 205-day weights and included in the American Angus Association National Cattle Evaluation (NCE).

As a result, calves weaned earlier than 160 days of age did not receive the 205-day adjusted weights, and their data did not contribute to genetic predictions.

"Lowering the minimum age requirement for taking weaning weights will provide breeders more flexibility for taking these measurements, permitting younger calves to remain in their respective contemporary groups to better fit the management system that may be in place," says Bill Bowman, director of performance programs for the Association.

In addition, the new nonlinear adjustment formula performs a more reliable job of the calculation of adjusted weights on the calves that are on the outer bounds of the age windows.



The reserve champion owned heifer, PVF Proven Queen, was exhibited by Brittany Full, Mt. Airy.

NCGA Releases 'World Of Corn 2003'

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has released The World of Corn 2003, the nation's only comprehensive almanac and one-stop shop for corn industry information.

"NCGA has taken the lead for more than a decade in producing World of Corn as a service to its more than 32,000 members, as well as all of agriculture, government and academia" said NCGA President Fred Yoder.

The World of Corn includes statistics on NCGA's six primary focus issues — ethanol, trade, research and new uses, biotechnology, transportation and farm policy — as well as consumption, export and production data, contacts within NCGA, its affiliated state associations, and the agriculture industry.

Yoder noted the World of Corn 2003 is dedicated to all the individuals "who help make our world go round," and this year's issue introduces readers to six of them. "Their stories reflect a diversity of backgrounds but share a common passion for corn and its potential," said the Plain City, Ohio, corn grower. "All play vital roles in the six core corn and its potential. All play vital roles in the six core theaters of action where NCGA is heavily involved.

"World of Corn 2003 tells our story from six personal viewpoints," Yoder continued. "As you read, you will meet other corn growers, a barge captain, a scientist, a public servant and a corn trader. And you'll also gain insight into how your investment in NCGA is paying off."

Yoder concluded by stating the World of Corn is meant as a tool to reach out to the everyday producers who make agriculture the strong industry it is.

"Like many corn growers, I'm deeply interested in talking to the other people who live day to day with the concerns and issues that affect us all," he said. "At the end of the day, our mission is about people, their aspirations and their vision for the world of corn.

"Together we are 32,000 voices strong and making a difference."

The World of Corn 2003 is available at NCGA's Website, www.ncga.com, and also as an insert in the April edition of Corn and Soybean Digest.

BEFORE YOU "BURY" YOUR PLANTER IN COLD STORAGE 'TILL NEXT SEASON

CONSIDER THIS!

Now Is A Great Time To UPTIME

While any issue concerning this years' planter function are fresh on your mind

Mr. Planter Owner·

Binkley & Hurst Bros Inc. is offering our annual off-season inspection and evaluation of your planter for the purpose of identifying worn, broken or malfunctioning parts. Many times, seemingly insignificant wear will affect the accuracy of your planter more than you realize. If nothing else, it may be time to have your finger pickup meters checked on our test stand. Also, new innovations, attachments and options are constantly being introduced which may be of interest to you for installation on your planter.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. parts and service personnel are specifically trained and informed planter specialists, ready to examine your planter with you! If it is determined that the planting proficiency of your planter could be improved with our service, we would be happy to provide that service to you. At the time of inspection we will recommend to you any items needing attention. Also at that time we will remove your meters to return to the dealership for testing, if you so desire The cost for meter service is $24.95. This includes testing, cleaning and repair labor (parts not included).

If you set an appointment for planter evaluation, you will be charged a flat fee.

4 or 6 row planter	$175.00
8 row planter	$200.00
12 or 16 row planter	$225.00

(Customers over 50 miles radius of Lititz, subject to mileage charge)

If no evaluation is requested, we can simply perform the service without charging an evaluation fee. A Technician will visit your farm with one of our well-stocked service trucks to assist you in reconditioning your planter. We encourage you to be a part of the actual servicing so that any pointers or insight which the technician may have for you with reguard to planter operation could be conveyed at that time If you schedule an uptime before September 30, 2003, you will save 10% on KINZE and CASE IH parts and labor!

If you have any Quesitons, please contact the planter department at (717)626-4705 or (800)414-4705

Thank you, Kevin Smoker

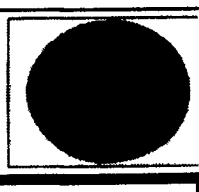
THE BEST IN TOGHNESS AND QUALITY!

FL "American-Built" Gearboxes
The FL series from Servis-Rhino features super-duty "American-Built" gearboxes backed by a FIVE-YEAR LIMITED GEARBOX WARRANTY The premium quality drivelines of the FL series are covered by an unequaled TWO-YEAR LIMITED DRIVELINE WARRANTY (Shields Removed to Snow Detail).

FL15 Wing Hinge Support
The SR15, FL15 Magnum, SR20, and FL20 models feature continuously welded wing hinge tubes from front-to-rear for greater load bearing capabilities All Rhino flex-wing cutters feature a one-piece, solid steel hinge pin for maximum strength and precise wing alignment (Chain Guards are optional Equipment, Deflectors are Standard)

Wing Float
A special "free-float" wing cylinder lug design helps reduce wear and tear on the wing hydraulic cylinders internal components The wing is able to better folow ground contours more easily without the cylinders rod moving. (Except SE15-4A) The attachment of the cylinder to the lug is a precise fit, as compared to some competitive cutters where a slot is used to allow the wing to float The Rhino design helps minimize wear and shock loads to components The wing transport bar is standard for greater safety and stores neatly out of the way when not in use.



FL15 Heavy-Duty Pan Blade Carriers
The super-duty pan blade carriers of the FL15 Magnum are 3/16" thick and reinforced by a 3/4" solid steel plate in the bottom of the pans. Besides adding strength and durability to the pan the extra weight provides a "flywheel effect" in demanding cutting conditions which reduces operating costs. Lower gearbox seal protection is provided by a flange on the blade hub that completely overlaps the lower gearbox housing

The SM60 skid steer mower from Servis-Rhino® and your skid steer loader can tackle a range of industrial, commercial, and agricultural mowing jobs

DITCHBANK MOWER

DB150. Over 30 years of hydraulic mower design experience has made the Rhino® DB150 the preferred choice of experienced operators for the mowing of pond banks, levees, drainage ditches, and hard-to-reach areas

The DB150 can extend to a maximum of 158" from the center line of the tractor allowing the 60 inch rotary head to cut areas that are difficult or impossible to reach with ordinary mowers By being hydraulically driven, maintenance is greatly reduced with the absence of belts and pulleys The DB150 outperforms many competitive units with smaller hydraulic systems The DB150 utilizes a 60 gallon hydraulic system which allows the unit to run cooler in tough mowing conditions The large reservoir also serves as a counterweight and remains stationary on the mainframe eliminating the potential traffic hazard of a movable counter-balance weight The DB150 features a heavy-duty three-point hitch using a lower double lug hitch system to fit a wide range of tractors To help insure a clean cut, the DB150 features updraft blades and a blade tip speed of 20,028 FPM

The Most Powerful Blower Made In Stock At Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc. - 1000 RPM
Model 1580 Gehl - Get One Today!

Choose The Gehl Blower That's Right For You

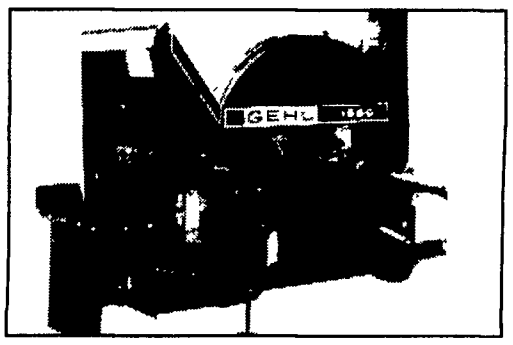
With three models it's easy to match a high-capacity Gehl blower to your operation. In side by side tests at a 100' silo, Gehl blowers out-performed the best the competition had to offer, with the Model 1580 cleaning out an 18' self-unloading box full of haylage 18% faster than the closest competitive blower and 25% faster than one of the so called "leaders"

Gehl's secret is the twin spinner delivery system and the twin-sided fan Two 24-inch spinners rifle your crop into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph There, the twin-sided fan, with paddles on each side, blows the material up the pipe with ease it's almost like getting the performance of two blowers in one

Gehl blowers are also loaded with on convenience features you're sure to appreciate

As a guideline, we recommend the following

Silo size	HP required	Gehl Model
25'Wx90' and higher	100+ hp	FB1580 (1000 rpm) in stock



The three main factors that contribute to a forage blower s capacity are tip speed hop per capabilities and available horsepower Generally speaking for optimum capacity the blower requires at least one horsepower for each foot the material must be blown

For instance, a blower on a 20-foot-diameter by 60-foot-center silo would require 70-plus horsepower On a 25-foot-diameter by 90-foot center fill silo you should have 100-plus horsepower

Horsepower requirements can be reduced with smoother unloading forage boxes and a wider gooseneck at the top of the silo

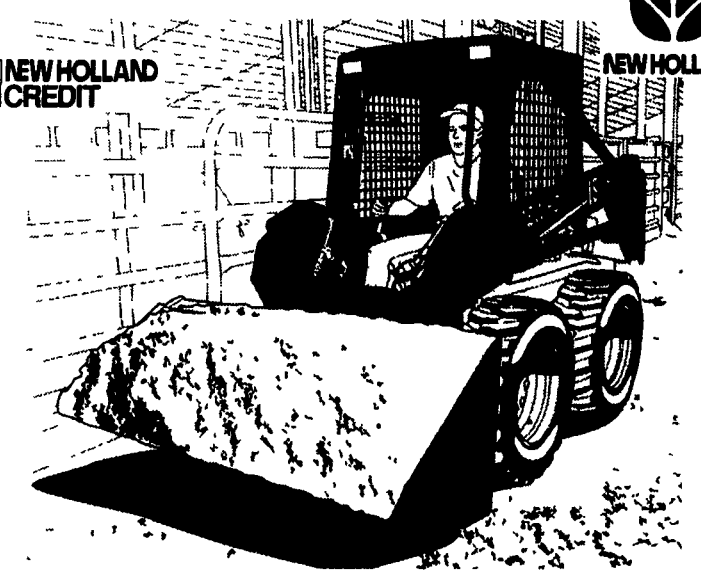
Hard work demands productive, dependable equipment, like the New Holland Super Boom™ skid steer. Super Boom has unbeatable stability and visibility, faster travel speeds, superior dump height and reach, greater bucket and lift capacity and more attachments than anyone.

Stop in today and see what the LS150 Super Boom can do for you.



Cut faster... condition better

For greater maneuverability and higher efficiency, nothing beats the Model 1431 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from New Holland. It features a 13' cutting width, and operates at high ground speeds in wet, heavy grass without plugging. Fire anthills and gopher mounds won't stop the new Model 1431 either.

Outstanding features include:

- A center pivot-tongue design
- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar, roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

For maximum harvesting efficiency, check out the Model 1431 Discbine.

It's the best in the field and it's in stock now!

KRAUSE DISCS ARE BUILT TO LAST.

3 SOLID REASONS TO INVEST IN A DEPENDABLE KRAUSE DISC FOR YOUR FARM

The Original Rockflex Disc

Krause engineered the first "Rockflex" disc in 1965. Krause 7300 & 7400 discs are built tough and incorporate Rockflex bearing arms that protect your disc in all types of soil and field conditions.

Durability

Krause 7300 & 7400 discs are built from a foundation of structural steel strength and are ready to take on years of your toughest tillage. The frames are backed with a full three-year limited warranty, so you can be confident in the durability of Krause.

Resale Value

Krause 7300 & 7400 discs are built with quality components, and no disc on the market today maintains its value better than a Krause disc. When you go to sales to watch a disc sell, you'll find out that Krause discs always bring top dollar.

Hoober has Krause rockflex discs in stock from 18' to 31' Call a Hoober salesman today for all your Krause needs!

Major Firm Rolling Out New Beef Cuts

DENVER, Colo. — A new line of frozen steaks and roasts inspired by the checkoff-funded Beef Value Cuts program is being launched in many parts of the country.

As part of its $100 million branding initiative, Tyson Foods, Inc., is shipping the new line to retailers in California, Oregon, Washington, Alaska and selected stores in Idaho. The line includes five new cuts from the Beef Value Cuts program: the Flat Iron Griller, Medallion Roast, Center Filet, Mesquite Center Filet and Peppered Center Filet.

In developing its new ready-to-cook beef products, Tyson Foods took advantage of pioneering work put forth by the beef industry with the checkoff-funded Muscle Profiling Study and the resultant beef value cuts.

The company is initially launching the new beef products on the West Coast, in resealable packages that preserve quality and allow consumers to use what they need and save the rest for another meal. The packages include easy-to-follow cooking instructions.

The Medallion Roasts contain two 12-ounce roasts per bag; the Flat Iron Griller, Center Filet, Mesquite Center and Peppered Centered Filet each contain four 6-ounce steaks per bag. The suggested retail price ranges from $9.99 to $10.99 per bag.

To help bolster carcass values and increase profit opportunities for cattle producers, the Beef Checkoff Program is helping to promote value cuts in programs being coordinated on behalf of the Cattlemen's Beef Board and state beef councils by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA).

Participating beef councils include those in California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho, where Tyson is launching its new beef products.

Other state beef councils are also rolling out beef value cuts through programs in their states.

"It's exciting that a nationally known brand name has taken these cuts and is putting so much energy and resources into promoting them," said Tracy Brunner, a Kansas Beef Producer and chairman of the New Products and Culinary Initiatives Subcommittee. "For the beef industry, it's an important step in the continuing process of creating new markets for beef value cuts, and increased value for beef."

The Muscle Profiling Study, from which the value cuts program emerged, analyzed 39 individual muscles from the underutilized chuck and round, identifying specific characteristics of each muscle, including palatability, functionality and how to get the most value from each.

The research led to creation of 14 new cuts of beef.

According to Brunner, who is a member of the Cattlemen's Beef Board, the new line of cuts offers consumers easy preparation, greater consistency, more lean beef product options, and convenient choices of beef that are priced to match other proteins available. They also offer greater profit potential for the beef industry, he said, because increases in demand for chuck and round enhance the value of the entire beef carcass.

"Research indicates the introduction of new products like these has increased demand and value for the chuck and round and contributed positively to fed cattle prices for producers over the last several years," Brunner said.

"We are excited about introducing the new Flat Iron and Center Filet beef cuts directly to the consumer," said Bob Corscadden, senior vice president and chief marketing officer for Tyson. "These recent products of beef industry checkoff-funded research and development have already made quite an impact in the restaurant industry."

Silage Spreaders with a Heritage of Quality

Lancaster Level-Flo has been the leader in non-motorized silage spreaders for more than 25 years. Each spreader is specifically designed to meet the needs of the individual operator.

Choose the spreader that best matches the equipment you use to fill your silo.

The Model 1030 Multi-Flo™ is our standard silage spreader. With a 9" gooseneck, it is designed for average capacity blowers and silo sizes.

The Model 1200 Multi-Flo® has a 12" wide gooseneck. Its larger size all but eliminates plugging problems, even when you blow in haylage. It is especially helpful in larger silos.

The BlueMax® is built for those who push high-capacity silo filling equipment to the limit. All parts of the BlueMax® subject to wear are made 25% heavier - and the stainless steel plate is twice as heavy. For strength, there are reinforcements all around. Even our well-known non-binding hinge is heavier.

For more information or the location of the Lancaster dealer nearest you, call today 1-800-635-8708.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

What's heat forming?

In metal roofing and siding it's the best way to go! Here is why. Everlast heats the paint very hot on their Everlast II product before they cut and form it into roofing and siding. Tests have proven that heating paint before cutting and bending prevents virtually all microscopic cracks in the paint. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important. Normally manufacturers form and cut at room temperature. Unfortunately that cracks the paint causing early rust at formed bends and edges.

Announcing:
Crude Soy Oil Now Available
With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil
A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:
- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:
- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program
- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products
